FREIGHT CARS lost their wheels in the 27-car derailment of a Frisco freight train in Matthews at 4 a.m. Sunday.

THE LOCATION of the 27-car Frisco freight car derailment was at the eastern town limits of Matthews near the Allen-Davis Company.

27 Frisco Freight Cars Leave Track

By Leo Schade

MATTHEWS -- Twenty seven cars of a Frisco freight train derailed at 4 a.m. Sunday in the northeast edge of this New Madrid county town. There were more than 100 cars in the northbound train.

No one was injured.

The pileup of cars presented an awesome sight. It caused heavy damage to cars loaded with freight. The cars were jostled and forced off tracks. Many overturned. Wheels were stripped off some cars.

Trains were rerouted until the damage was repaired at 11 p.m. last night and service was restored.

The engineer was P. E. Duncan, of Chaffee, and the conductor was C. H. Young of Illmo.

The pile up of cars occurred a few hundred yards north of the highway H crossing into Matthews.

It was believed to have started when the train passed switching tracks.

Those at the end were taken south.

Inspectors began an investigation of the cause of the derailment, which was not immediately determined.

Police Report

Three Stabbings

Three stabbings were reported to police during the weekend.

Police said Tommy Hayes, 46, 336 Petty, reported that Ernestine Nicholson, a resident of cabin 8, Walker's Quarter, cut him on the left arm above the wrist Sunday at Yarber's Pool Hall, 226 Felker. He did not sign a complaint on the woman. He was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community hospital.

James McClure, 36, Pinhook, was treated and released at the Missouri Delta Community hospital Sunday for cuts received to the left side and face in a fight. Police said McClure told them he was stabbed by Bill Porter of Dorena in Pinhook. Charleston police authorities were notified of the incident, police said.

Lee Watson, 17, Bell City, was admitted to the hospital and treated for stabbing wounds Sunday. He is reported in satisfactory condition today. Watson told police a 15 year old youth from Bell City stabbed him accidentally in Flora's Cafe in Bell City.

In other police activity, Carl Young, 318 Prosperity, reported to police Sunday that someone took his black 1959 Dodge Saturday night or early Sunday. The car was recovered by police Sunday on North Main and police took William J. Bequette, St. Louis, into custody for investigation of auto theft. He was released when Young refused to sign a complaint against him, police reported.

James Harrington, 18, 240 Felker, was charged Sunday with assault and affray for allegedly striking Thomas Grey, 1108 Osage, in the face with his fist. Grey signed the complaint on Harrington, police reported.

Harrington signed a complaint against Grey charging that he pulled a knife on him (Harrington). The charge against Grey was dismissed, police reported.

Swallows Arrive On Schedule

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) - The swallows are back at Mission San Juan Capistrano for their 176th summer.

The birds arrived Sunday from their winter quarters in Argentina on the traditional day, St. Joseph Day, a Roman Catholic religious holiday.

Only once in 177 years did the swallows not appear, mission fathers say. About 60 years ago, they were two days late because of bad weather over the West Coast.

Budget Bills At Top

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Appropriations topped the list when the House returned to work today.

The budget bills gained first round approval last week and the goal is to pass them before the Houses recesses for its Easter vacation Wednesday.

The Senate Appropriations Committee will start hearings on them next Monday.

Another important subject -- congressional reapportionment -- occupied the Senate Apportionment Committee in executive session today. At the last report the committee was still wrestling with the problem of complying with a federal court's one man - one vote requirement.

A bill to prohibit wiretapping comes up before a Senate committee tonight while the House Insurance Committee struggles with a broad insurance code revision recommended by the State Division of Insurance.

A Senate committee will hear opponents to a similar bill tonight.

As the session nears the halfway mark, committees of both houses have been admonished to look carefully at all bills because the calendars of both the House and Senate are getting jammed.

The Senate has run into hours of debate on relatively minor measures and as a result many major bills are far down the list awaiting debate and amendment.

The rule of thumb is that if you don't get your bill out of your own house by the end of March its chances of passage are dim.

Here Are Coloring Contest Rules

"The contest is open to all children in this area, aged two to 12. Paint, pencil or crayon may be used. Entries must be submitted no later than 5 p.m. Friday, March 24. Judges decision will be final."

Egg Hunt In Malone Park Sunday

The annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Junior Women's club will be held Saturday in Malone park. Co-chairmen are Ava Allen and Carol McArthur.

Youngsters one to 10 can participate. Chief of Police Arthur Bruce will begin the festivities at 9 a.m.

Children, one through three, will hunt between 9 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. The four through six - year - olds will hunt between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. and the seven through 10 year-olds will hunt between 11 a.m. and noon.

Prizes will be given in each age group for the child finding the most eggs and the child who finds the golden egg.

Pledges No Utility Rate Raise

Members of the Board of Public Works pledged that no rate increase will be applied if the purchase of the Missouri Utility Co. facilities is effected.

The board made the announcement at a financial advisory committee meeting with representatives of Sikeston financial institutions Wednesday at the Rustic Rock.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss and review the economic feasibility study prepared by the Burns-McDonnell Engineering firm regarding the purchase of the facilities.

Mayor Kendall Sikes and members of the Board of Public works also were present. Facts concerning rates, taxes and

Three Vie In Council Post Race

A total of 3,703 voted in the last general election held April 5, 1966, when Lee Shell and Harry Dudley were elected to the council. A primary was not required in that race, city clerk John Vaughn said today.

Three candidates have filed for the three-year council post of Arthur Ziegenhorn. His term expires April 4.

Ziegenhorn has refiled for the post. Also in the running are Hugh T. McCollum and James Clark.

Voters will cast their ballot for only one candidate in the primary. They will scratch out two names on the ballot. The remaining unmarked name is the voters' choice.

The two candidates who receive the highest number of votes in the primary will oppose each other in the general election April 4, Vaughn said.

Polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Absentee votes, which are cast today will be counted Wednesday, Vaughn said.

Guam Opinions Clash

GUAM (AP) - President Johnson's avowed intent to focus his Guam conference on the works of peace clashed today into a call by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for a sharp escalation of the Vietnam war.

Johnson also got a report from his own close advisors that the Communists are doing some escalating of their own.

At the first formal conference session, atop the highest hill on this damp tropical island, Ky in his opening public statement questioned whether the time had not come for the United States to bomb Hanoi, block the harbor at Haiphong and expand the war into Laos and Cambodia.

The public expressions of such questions made it apparent that Ky thinks the United States should do all those things. But both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, meeting with newsmen after the session, emphasized repeatedly that there was no discussion of escalation. Rusk contended that Ky raised his questions only in the context that Hanoi is unwilling to seek peace.

However, both McNamara and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, said Johnson was told that the fighting in South Vietnam is becoming more intense and the Communists are stepping up the tempo of their offensive operations.

McNamara said the chief executive's military advisers reported: "The tempo of the war has increased significantly in recent weeks but, despite this fact, they believe the trend of the war is in our favor."

He said the Communists are using new weapons - rockets and bigger mortars - and are making an unsuccessful effort "to seize the initiative."

"The enemy is by no means beaten," said the defense chief, "but he is no longer capable of

2,500 See World of Good Turns

The annual exposition of the Okeechobee district of the Boy Scouts, "A World of Good Turns", drew 2,500 Scouts and visitors to the Armory Saturday to witness scouting in action.

The theme came into view from a 10 by 10 foot unisphere on the front lawn. Inside the building was decorated with space age satellites hanging from the ceiling. Small model missiles raced from one end of the auditorium to the other.

Troop 43 camped outside.

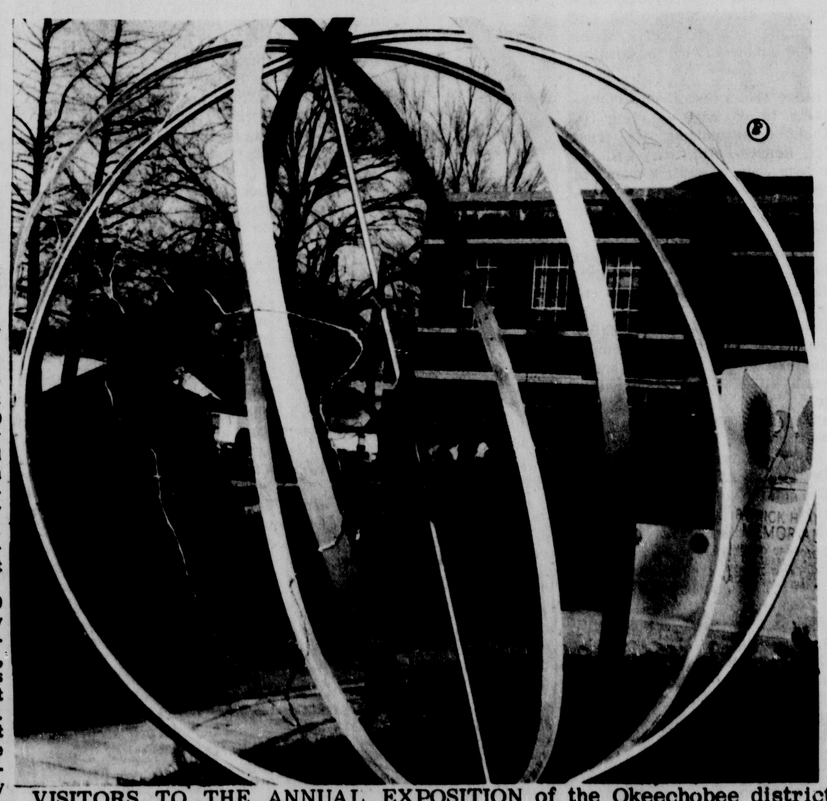
Scout troops were from Charleston, East Praire, New Madrid, Oran, Morehouse, Bertrand and Sikeston, with eight Explorer posts from Sikeston, and Cub Packs from Blodgett, Morley, Bertrand, Vanduser, New Madrid, Morehouse, Matthews and Sikeston.

In charge of the event were Eddie Schrader, scout executive, Don Agnew, council chairman; Bill Pinnell, general chairman; Jim Green, district activities; Dale Beaird, printed program, and publicity; Bob Bozell, tickets; Richard Fussell, program; John Harper, concessions; Jack Conyers, pinewood derby; Rev. Lindy Cannon, space derby; Bill Munger, swimming pool director; Glenn Keller, awards chairman and Jerry Griffin, participation chairman.



VISITORS TO THE ANNUAL EXPOSITION of the Okeechobee district of the Boy Scouts knew on approach they were going to view a World of Good Turns. The global nature of the show was symbolized by this unisphere on the armory lawn.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

IRONY: TAXES ARE BAD; SPENDING IS GOOD

Government spending is popular today, despite the doubts its excesses raise in the minds of many Americans. The reason is simple, if not very creditable: too many Americans are perfectly willing to accept federal money.

But the money government spends has to come from somewhere, and that somewhere is the American taxpayer. The very same people who love to accept federal money often complain when they feel the bite of taxes. Taxes are just as unpopular as spending is popular. Ironic, isn't it?

In the past, constuctive Americans arguing for sound fiscal policies have warned about deficit spending and its dangers. Deficit spending is borrowing against the future, with additional interest payments that have to be met now from taxes. Deficits are important and certainly deserve careful examination; only a small part of our total government spending - just a bit over 5 per cent in the federal administrative budget - is borrowed money. The great bulk of federal spending is still paid for by taxes here and now and we ought to have a very clear idea of how this taxing is done and what it really means.

If we want to understand, we must rid ourselves of the nation created by newspapers that all spending is summed up in the President's annual budget request to Congress. This is far from the fact.

First of all, the administrative budget does not include any of numerous special services provided by special taxes, the best example being social security. When this additional federal spending is added to the federal administrative budget, the total figure rises from just below $100 billion to well above $125 billion.

We must remember that the federal government is not the only government we have in our country. We also have to support state and local governments, whose spending has been growing in recent years. Unlike the federal government, most state and local government spending is sharply limited by local law: as more and more special services, in addition to the basic government service of preserving law and order, are offered by state and local governments, new taxes must be raised to pay for them. Perhaps these taxes belong in a different bookkeeping category than those paid to the federal government for federal services; yet, they are all paid by the same man, the taxpayer. It is his money and his money alone which can support, through taxes, all three levels of government: local, state and federal.

The true measure of the cost of government - the total amount of spending that must be paid for in taxes, with a bit of borrowing on the side - is the cost of local, state and federal governments added together.

This is especially important to understand when we hear so much talk about "tax cuts." To cut one kind of taxes while increasing another kind does not lighten the load on the taxpayer; it only shifts it around.

Last year, a federal income tax cut was enacted by Congress with tremendous fanfare. For the time being, many taxpayers thought they had more money to spend; but at the time, Congress had increased the social security payroll tax. There is even now a move for eight increases in SS taxes over the next 21 years to pay for hospital care for the elderly.

Aside from the merit or lack of merit of any of these plans, it was a simple fact that most if not all of the money added to the take-home pay of the ordinary American by the income tax cut would soon be taken away again by increases in the social security tax.

This becomes even clearer when the cost of state and local governments is brought into the picture. According to estimates by the Tax Foundation, state spending is now rising at the average rate of 8 per cent a year.

Increasingly, states are resorting to the device pioneered by the federal government - the withholding of several kinds of taxes from paychecks. Year by year, the column of various sums taken out of the paycheck first by the federal government then by the state government grows longer. Undoubtedly, this cuts down on evasion of taxes, which can never be morally justified in a country where any Freedom remains. Yet, the trend is there and ought to be clearly recognized. Otherwise, people might assume that all the talk about "tax cuts" at the federal level really means they can get more government spending and services for less money - a very attractive version of having your cake and eating it too.

Now, what about deficits? Many people assume that the whole argument over deficit spending by government is whether the federal government ought to be in debt. The plain fact is, due to wars and defense needs, the national debt is more than $300 billion, and such a vast sum of money can hardly be repaid in the near future. The issue is whether we will continue to go deeper in debt.

Here again, we make a mistake if we view this simply as a "moral issue"; i.e., that we ought not to be in debt so much and certainly ought not to get in deeper. As long as our credit as a nation is good, making a moral issue of the national debt just will not appeal to many people. Among some circles, this may be a good arguement against deficit spending. With most, it does not carry much weight.

The point which ought to be stressed is that for each additional dollar the federal government goes into debt, the taxpayer here and now will have to pay several cents in interest. This is not just a burden we push off onto our children or grandchildren, as so many have said. It is an extra burden on us right now. Money borrowed must not only be paid back; it must be paid for. Already, interest on the national debt is the second largest item in the federal budget, trailing only defense spending in size. As we go deeper in dept by $5 billion to $10 billion each year, the interest that has to be paid on the total debt each year also increases. This payment of interest is a burden on the taxpayer which so-called "economies" cannot lighten. It is a rising charge and a burden which will increase indefinitely with greater deficits, unless the size of the national debt is reduced.

In promoting a broader understanding of taxation, it is also important to show that the total tax burden is not measured by all the taxes one pays directly to government: when every income, payroll, sales and property tax and every special fee paid has been added up, there still remains indirect and hidden taxation that the taxpayer shells out for goods he buys.

When taxes of any kind are levied on the manufacture and sale of goods, those taxes become part of the cost of manufacture and sale and, therefore, raise the price of goods. The ordinary citizen may never have heard of many of the taxes levied on the makers and sellers of goods, but in the end he pays a large part of those taxes himself through higher prices on these goods.

From this example, it is easy to see that in the long run a tax on one is a tax on all. It is tragic that taxes have so long been the object of pulling and hauling by special interest groups. Any gains or advantages by special interest groups are temporary. The total tax burden is in the end shared in many different ways by all.

However we may amuse ourselves with myths of "free federal money," every cent any government spends in this country must come from taxes, or from debasement of the currency through inflation which has been called "the cruelest tax of all." Those taxes must come from earners and producers, restricting the rewards of their earning and production. Whether the benefits provided are worth the cost is a question every American must answer for himself.

A MEDICAL MILESTONE

The United States will pass another medical milestone this spring when medical school graduations push the nation's population of physicians over the 300,000 mark. The entry of the 300,000th doctor of medicine in the records of the American Medical Association will be an event of special significance. In a nation accustomed to dramatic progress in the science of medicine, too little recognition has been given the medical profession for its quiet, persistent efforts to increase the number of physicians available to bring the benefits of modern medicine to the American people.

Too often, uninformed or misinformed critics of the profession have accused the American Medical Association of limiting the supply of physicians to keep competition down and fees up. On the contrary, the AMA and the state and local medical societies have done more than any other organization, public or private, to increase the number of doctors. The physician population has been increasing faster than the general population for several years and is expected to continue this trend.

Medical school construction has been booming. The U.S. now has 88 medical schools -- 11 more than existed at the end of World War II. In the next five years, 13 more will open. At least six and possibly a dozen others will be built or under construction by 1975. Medical school enrollments and graduations are at record levels.

The American Medical Association particularly has long been engaged in extensive programs to attract more talented students to careers in medicine, to assist medical students, interns and residents to finance their education and training, to help in the development of new medical schools, and to maintain high standards of medical education. These constructive programs have a twofold objective: To increase the number of doctors to meet the demands of a growing population and to assure that the doctors who serve you have the best possible education and training.

A colonel in the Foreign Legion, assuming command of a desert outpost, spied a camel tied up behind the enlsted men's quarters and asked his first lieutenant to explain its presence there. The lieutenant replied that the men, being without female companionship required satisfaction, and the camel was used for that purpose. The colonel, being an understanding man, agreed that the camel could remain.

Several weeks later, the colonel himself felt a passionate urge welling up inside him and ordered the camel brought to his room. When the colonel arrived, the colonel immediately set upon her with vigor. Having achieved satisfaction, the colonel turned around and discovered, with embarrassment, that the lieutenant was still standing in the doorway.

"Well," the colonel said, breaking the silence after a moment, "is that the way the men usually do it?"

"Not exactly, sir," the lieutenant replied, "The men ordinarily use her to take them into town."

JURIES ARE JUSTIFIABLE

Which is fairer: a jury trial or a trial by a judge?

Jury supporters state in the Catholic Digest that there is no evidence that jury decisions are less fair than judicial ones. In a recent comparison of 2,000 jury and nonjury trials in Michigan, it was concluded that the difference in results were insubstantial. In a study made in Chicago, judges agreed in 95% of the cases that the jury's conclusion was justifiable.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - As the Senate Ethics Committee ground its hearings toward a stop last week, it was apparent that its investigative staff had done a meticulous job of probing Sen. Dodd's finances, but that the senators themselves either had forgotten or ignored some of the most important points in the strange career of Tom Dodd.

These include his backdoor law practice, payroll padding, payroll maneuvering, favors to gift-bearing lobbyists, accepting free automobiles and airplane travel from those doing business with the government.

Since this column had something to do with starting the Dodd investigation, we trust the Senate committee will not resent our reporting some of the facts which they overlooked. Here are a few of them:

Repairs on Dodd's summer home - Mchael O'Hare, Dodd's former office manager and bookkeeper, was prepared to testify that more than $50,000 was taken out of the testimonial dinner funds to renovate Dodd's summer home in North Stonington, Conn. He was not cross-examined. The whole thing was ignored.

Advice on tax-free gifts - Sen. Dodd has claimed that he had the advice of his lawyers to treat contributions to testimonial dinners as tax-free gifts. However, sworn testimony before the Senate committee showed that Dodd's tax accountant in Hartford, David Nichols, warned him otherwise. Nichols learned that Dodd has transferred $6,000 to his personal account from funds raised at the "D.C. reception for Dodd" and warned that the $6,000 loan that this money was taxable, while at the same time claiming that other identical contributions were not taxable.

Loans & Jobs - Dodd persuaded the White House to appoint the son of Lazarus Hayman in Hartford as assistant U.S. attorney in Connecticut. Simultaneously Dodd borrowed first $7,500 from Hayman; later $6,000 from him to satisfy a total income tax payment of $13,500.

The Senate committee listened to testimony regarding Dodd's borrowing to pay this $13,500 but never really delved into whether Dodd paid back the money and its possible connection with the U.S. attorneyship which Dodd secured for the son of his benefactor.

Backdoor Law Practice - There's a criminal statute forbidding a Senator from taking law fees in return for practice before Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall in the case of a government park and a high rise apartment which Dodd's client Tom Frouge wanted to build in San Francisco obstructing the view of the Golden Gate.

"I am sure you will understand," he wrote his law associates on July 2, 1961, "when I tell you that I have made a large contribution to the firm, and actually my return has been small. It should be much larger, and this is something I will have to talk about very soon.

"I am sure you know as well as I do that there is a considerable amount of business that goes into the office because of me...

"Many men who are in public life receive a steady income from their law practices because of the value of the association."

Letter to LBJ - An array of Dodd witnesses, obviously carefully coached, swore to the Senate committee that money raised from testimonial dinners was for the purpose of paying Dodd's personal expenses, not campaign expenses. The Senate committee, however, knew of one clinching letter written by Dodd to none less than Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president, Aug. 5, 1963, thanking him for agreeing to speak at Dodd day in Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign," Dodd wrote to Johnson.

The Senate committee could have subpoenaed the letter from Dodd's files or requested it from the White House. It did neither.

Payroll Padding - Mrs. Beverly Curry of Hartford has been on the Senator's payroll for six years for $4,500 annually. Mrs. Curry is supposed to be attached to the Hartford office but has never worked there. But her husband is a big Connecticut politician whose support Dodd needs.

The son of Mrs. Florence Lowe, Washington representative of Metromedia, was put on the juvenile delinquency subcommittee payroll, though he had no experience in the intricate problem of the causes of delinquency. Metromedia was under investigation for its emphasis on TV crime at the time.

Edward Sullivan, who draws $15,000 a year as a member of Dodd's staff, lives in Hartford and does no real work for Dodd except money-raising. Jim Gartland, who does come into the Dodd office, is chiefly a chair-warmer. These absorb much of the senator's staff salary allotment.

Diverting Personnel - To make up for chair-warmers, Dodd diverts trained personnel to his office from the Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee. This committee, dealing with a vital subject, is supposed to have a staff of 21; though only eight have been working on committee business. At one time during the investigation of televised crime by NBC, Committee Counsel Carl Perrian threatened to resign because he was investigating one of the biggest corporations in television without enough personnel to do it.

Gramp how come they call Unk, Uncle Sap?

I usto think that wuz a joke, but now I see its more truth than joke. I been writin the papers ever since we got in that trap in Asia. That it wuz a infernal triangle. That if Unk and Russia tangled, China had it made, if China and Unk tangled Russia had it made but now we find Uncle Sap went over there and stuck his big foot in that booby trap and ain't got the sense that de Gall had to git that big foot out.

Anybody that keeps up wid the goins on or reads the papers on weekends, can see Russia China and is shadder-boxin. Bof of em is furnishin arms and ammo to North Vietnam and papers sez China is feedin in troops as needed. Readin betwxt the lines they got Uncle Sap right where they want him, tailer made to order. Only thing they got to watch is not to put on too much pressure so's Unk will catch on to the booby trap and pull out like de Gall did, until they can grind him down little at a time til he won't be able to butt in out of his sphere of influence on the American continent. You see China would be happy to lose millions of men each year fur nother hundred years, seems like then they could feed the ballance.

It is easy to suppose that we could have democracy without the jury system. All cases could be decided by a panel of judges or by a group of professional arbitrators. It would be cheaper and less cumbersome. But let us hope that this never happens! Simplicity is worth while when it can be achieved without sacrifice of principle. But the day the jury system is replaced with some easy alternative is the day that democracy will die.

Excuse me, sir," the young man said, nervously entering the living room, where his girlfriend's father was reading the evening paper, "but there's something kind of important that I'd like to ask you. I was wondering whether--uh--that is, if you'd be willing to, er. . .

"Why, of course, my boy," the father exlaimed, jumping to his feet and shaking the lad's hand vigbrously. "I'll give my permission gladly, because my little girl's happiness is all that matters to me!"

"Permission?" the young man gulped, obviously confused.

"You want to marry my daughter," the father said, "and you have my blessing. . ."

"Oh, no, sir," said the boy, "it's nothing like that. It's my car, sir. A payment was due last Thursday and unless I can come up with fifty dollars right away, they're going to repossess it, so I was wondering if you. . ."

"Certainly not," the father snapped, returning to the sofa and his paper. "I hardly know you."

CONTROL OF EDUCATION

Control of education in our country continues to shift from the local to the national level. For many years after our Republic was established, education remained under the jurisdiction of the States, counties, and local school districts. In recent years, however, the real authority has resided in Washington. This has come about gradually, but surely, through the enactment of far-reaching and all-encompassing aid-to-education bills.

Paradoxically, the one legislation enactment that has given the most power and authority to bureaucrats is not in any of the various aid-to-education bills. Rather, it is contained in the so-called Civil Rights Act of 1964. Found in Title VI of that Act, it is the section which authorizes withholding of funds under all grant-in-aid programs until the local administractors comply with the demands laid down in Washington.

This provision has become the silent partner to all federal grant-in-aid programs but thus far, it has been applied primarily in the field of education.

The Office of Education and the social planners have used the authority given them through Title VI to assume dictatorial powers not even envisioned by Congress when the Act was passed. They have done this by issuing "guidelines" apparently to assist the local school districts in formulating plans of compliance.

Compliance with these so-called "guidelines" is being required as though they had the force and effect of law, which they do not. These "guidelines" are simply extra-legal means of requiring that which the law itself does not require. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Rockefeller Pledges He'll Wipe Out All Non - Union Labor on Gigantic Projects.

New York: - There were two of us dining with the governor in one of the Rockefeller suites some time ago when a motorcycle state trooper arrived from the capital with a piece of legislation which needed signing before midnight.

Mine was the only fountain pen -- and since the new law called for the expenditure of $750 million, I was tempted to hurl my quill out the window and dam the gold flow. But I yielded and came away minus one pen and with the impression that Nelson Rockefeller always thinks giant size.

It is his master strategy on all fronts. The other day, for example, he invited 40 leaders of AFL-CIO craft unions to his office. They gathered at 11 a.m. on March 10. He outlined a $5- to $6 - billion transportation-highway - airport construction program.

Then he made an unprecedented promise:

He guaranteed that only union labor would be hired on this massive, sprawling 5 - year building project.

No other public official ever has made such a pledge in advance. Certainly no Republican.

Gov. Rockefeller will have to cope with many complicated laws involving low bidding under the public work laws.

For the assembled labor leaders, some of them the nation's toughest bargainers, the pledge was a fantastic prize. Scores of thousands of well - paying jobs are involved.

Over $1 billion will be spent on a new interwoven transportation system linking several states. Another $1 billion will go for road construction. About $250 million would be earmarked for small airports to handle the increasing fleets of private and company planes.

For an hour and a half in the crowded room at 22 W. 55 Street, his Manhattan office complex, the governor outlined the projects. He's a great one for slides.

He talked quietly, firmly and with the confidence that comes from the knowledge that those labor leaders were-and are-his close friends and political allies.

In turn he asked for their support in the state legislature and in the campaign for approval of the projects by the voters in the fall election. After that he disclosed that another $3 billion would come from the federal government and many county and municipal coffers.

Then he asked for a no-strike pledge.

This, too, was unprecedented on such vast projects. The men before him that forenoon speak for 500,000 skilled craftsmen and teamsters. They're not all strike-happy. But many of their members hit the bricks over grievances faster than showers in April.

Gov. Rockefeller was warmly received. The spokesmen said they'd have to think it over.

Some of them did during the week. In private conversations with the group's high command he got the pledge.

There is no doubt the governor stuck his neck way out. There are mighty few such heavy projects -- even at the moon ports bases -- which have been built entirely with union labor. Cape Kennedy has been struck many times by brother unions protesting the retention of low bidder, non - union construction firms there.

However, Gov. Rockefeller made the pledge of total unionized labor for many reasons.

First, he believes in the policy. And it would be sophomoric to think that he is not pleased thus to tie himself closer to the powerful New York labor movement as the 1968 election thunders on us. Few insiders here doubt he is making a massive drive for the G.O.P. presidential nomination.

His strategists say that he is the only Republican contender who has powerful union support and can cut into Mr. Johnson's labor vote.

Of course, Mr. Rockefeller knows that the bulk of his friends here will officially endorse Lyndon Johnson for re - election. But that does not shake Mr. Rockefeller. He's a polished sophisticate now.

He knows there are endorsements and endorsements. He knows that big unions can sit on their hands as well as put them into their pockets. He knows that big unions can go through the motions, can eye - dropper out money instead of pouring it on; the supplying of membership cards, mailing lists, and manpower can be delayed until they are virtually useless.

Some of those around him believe that this is what the New York unions would do to Mr. Johnson's campaign if Mr. Rockefeller were nominated.

His friends would "desert" Rockefeller in name only. He believes the intrastructure of the labor movement here and in many parts of California -- and at points in between -- are closer to him than to Lyndon Johnson.

So he is thinking big and moving daringly. If he gets the nomination, he will at least have run for President. If not, he'll not run again for any office. The rumor is he has enough to make ends meet.

SOLVING A FEW LAUNDRY PROBLEMS

Automatic washers will do a good job of getting clothes clean if proper laundering procedures are followed. A comparison of your procedures against the following may isolate the problem and provide the solution.

Graying of fabrics may be caused from overloading your laundry equipment - water not hot enough, not enough detergent in washing or soaking, or too long a wash or soak time.

When loading your washer allow enough room for items to circulate freely during agitation. About two-thirds full is enough, and don't pack the clothes in.

Water should reach your washer at 140 degrees to 160 degrees. If the water heater is far from the washer, turn the thermostat on the heater higher to compensate for the distance, and be sure that your water heater is large enough to accommodate all of the family's hot water needs.

Soil released from fabric in soaking will be redeposited when you do not use a detergent, or not enough detergent. Soak the load of clothes with enough detergent for no more than 15 minutes.

The strength of detergent can be used up if the wash time is too long and a redeposit of the soil onto clothes will occur. Wash only the recommended length of time for each type of load.

Not enough detergent is the chief cause of graying. Use the full amount recommended for your particular laundry equipment or by the detergent manufacturer.

Yellowing of fabrics may be caused by incomplete removal of oily based soils, certain bleaches, water impurities, or age.

To remove oil based soil, pretreat area with a heavy solution of laundry detergent. Wash fabric in hot water, using sufficient detergent and a bleach suitable to the fabric. The action of chlorine bleach on certain resin-treated cottons and rayons may cause them to yellow. Treat with color remover before ironing. The heat and retained chlorine will form an acid that will form fabric damage. Use oxygen-based bleach for future bleaching.

To remove yellowing caused by iron in the water, use a solution of oxalic acid (one tablespoon in one cup of warm water) or use a commercial rust remover. Precaution must be used with the oxalic acid solution. Use rubber gloves to prevent irritation to the skin and do not use the solution on nylon.

Yellowing caused by age can be treated with a detergent that contains a brightener, and is especially good on polyesters. For age yellowed nylons use a color remover or a special nylon whitener.

Excessive lint can be caused by overloading the laundry equipment and improper sorting. Load the wash so the clothes are allowed to move freely in the wash water. The water action will flush lint from the fabric surfaces.

When items giving up lint, towels, or cotton fabrics, are laundered together with items that naturally attract lint (synthetic fabrics), the latter will become unsightly from lint.

Boston Options Morehead; Cards Beat Chicago

Associated Press Sports Writer

The pitchers are going further in the spring training exhibitions now, but few of them are going as far as Dave Morehead.

Morehead, a Boston right-hander who has won only one game since he threw a no-hitter against the Cleveland Indians Sept. 16, 1965, has been optioned to Toronto of the International League.

He was bothered with arm trouble most of last season and had a 1-2 record. He was bombed for 10 runs in 2 1-3 innings by the New York Mets last Thursday in his only exhibition appearance this season.

"We had to send him where he can get a chance to pitch," Boston Manager Dick Williams said Sunday in Winter Haven, Fla. "When he shows us that he's okay, we'll call him back."

But while Williams was disappointed with Morehead's performance, he got some good news from another quarter — slugger Tony Conigliaro is on his way back.

"Tony should be swinging a bat in a week and playing in two weeks," Red Sox physician Dr. Thomas Tierney said after examining Conigliaro in Boston.

Conigliaro suffered a hairline fracture of the shoulder when hit by a pitch in batting practice Saturday. He was flown to Boston for an examination, and returned to the team Sunday.

He didn't make it back in time for the game, but the Red Sox still pulled out a 7-6 decision over Detroit.

Conigliaro's replacement, George Thomas, had three of the Red Sox' 15 hits and drove in three runs. Boston rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to win it, with Bob Tillman's bases-loaded squeeze bunt capping it.

Fritz Peterson and Thad Tillotson combined to throw a three-hitter for the Yankees. Peterson allowed only a single in six innings. A walk, Mickey Mantle's single and a force-out provided the only run.

A three-run burst in the sixth staked the Cardinals to their victory over the White Sox, St. Louis' third straight triumph.

Sonny Jackson's 10th - inning single drove in Ron Brand for the winning run in Houston's decision over the Pirates.

Sammy Ellis of the Reds held the Braves to one hit in their game, which was cut to six innings by a cold rain. The Braves lost catcher Joe Torre and backup catcher Gene Oliver. Torre suffered a split finger on his right hand and Oliver cracked a bone in his throwing hand.

Consecutive homers by Wes Parker and Jeff Torborg snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth and sent the Dodgers to their victory over the Orioles. Dave Johnson had a three-run homer for the loser.

Chris Short, Ruben Gomez and Pedro Ramos combined for a four-hit shutout for the Phillies, Short allowing three hits in six innings.

Cleveland scored five runs in a wild first inning and coasted in against the Angels.

The Giants won their third straight, getting four runs in the first inning and 15 hits in all off Cub pitching.

A walk, a balk and Dick Green's run scoring single in the 10th won it for the A's in Venezuela. Kansas City has won three of four from the Twins in their South American trip.

Wins Title

Kelly, Pyles Lead Gray Ridge Attack

VANDUSER--Allan Kelly and David Pyles scored 24 points each in leading the Gray Ridge basketball team to the championship of the men's invitational basketball tournament Saturday night. Morehouse was defeated 119-92. Vanduser won the consolation title by beating Matthews 84-79.

An all out team effort by the Gray Ridge squad in the scoring, rebounding and defensive departments gave the team its win.

Team captain and leading rebounder, Larry King, scored 19 points in his team's victory. Joe Jones added 13, Bob Kelly 11 and Henderson and Lane 10 each, Jerry Kelly eight.

Morehouse jumped to a 22-21 first period lead but a 36-point second period by the victors gave them a 57-45 lead at intermission. Gray Ridge scored 30 or more points in the final three periods.

Dale Sexton poured through 37 points to lead the Morehouse scoring and got 24-point backing from teammate Don Savage but to no avail. They could not overcome the talented Gray Ridge quintet.

Despite a 37-point production by Morehouse's Dick Schuerenberg, the home town team won its third game in the tournament and the consolation title.

Moberly Wins Tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — The Moberly Greyhounds of Missouri won an unprecedented fourth national junior college basketball championship Saturday night and drew an enthusiastic response from their followers.

The Greyhounds were nearly two hours late getting home Sunday because of bad weather. However, despite a dreary drizzle and near-freezing temperature, Moberly citizens gave them a parade through town behind the high school band. There was a program of greetings at the city auditorium, packed by nearly 2,000 persons.

Powell, Wyo., placed fourth by defeating Burlington, Iowa, 102-85. Fifth place went to Vincennes, Ind., downing Dodge City 73-64. Ranger finished seventh and Dodge City eighth.

Thoenen was named the tourney's most valuable player. He and teammate Stepter were named on the 10-man tournament all-star squad.

NIT Title To Salukis

By DICK COUCH

southern Illinois, the nation's No. 1 college division team, capped an impressive bid for big-time recognition by capturing the National Invitation Tournament title at New York with a 71-56 triumph over Marquette. The victory was the 19th in a row for the Salukis, who topped nine major opponents.

In the NIT consolation game, Rutgers' Bob Lloyd tossed in 44 points for a four-game total of 129, breaking the tournament record of 124 set by Maurice Stokes of St. Francis, Pa., 12 years ago, as the Scarlet Knights raced past Marshall, W.Va., 93-76.

Guy Lewis still thinks UCLA is headed for a fall, but the Houston basketball coach isn't sure his Cougars are mean enough to push the Bruins off their summit perch.

"We lack the killer instinct, and I don't know if that will be fatal against UCLA or not," Lewis said Sunday as the Cougars began preparing for their NCAA tournament date with the unbeaten, top-ranked Bruins Friday night.

Lewis, who predicted UCLA "will get beat" before his club earned the task of confronting the Bruins and 7-foot-1 Lew Alcindor, could promise only one thing Sunday: Houston won't settle for a standoff.

"I haven't decided how we'll play them," he said, "but we definitely won't try any control game on them. We don't even practice a delay. We think we have enough talent to get the ball in the hole against any team."

Elvin (Big E) Hayes heads Houston's talent parade and Lewis hopes the 6-foot-8 pivotman, whose 31 points triggered the Cougars' 83-75 victory over Southern Methodist in last Saturday night's NCAA Midwest regional final, will prove the Big Equalizer against UCLA prodigy Alcindor.

Big Lew poured in 38 points as the Bruins ousted University of Pacific 80-64 in the Far West regional for their 28th straight victory.

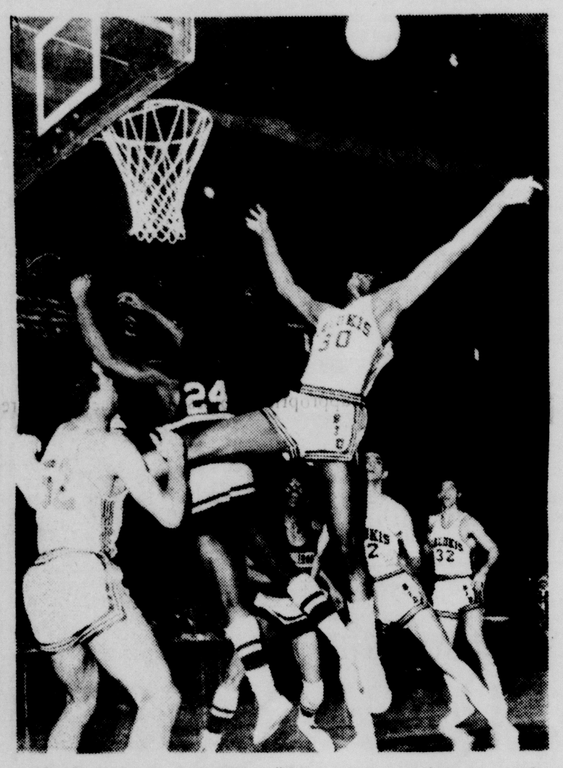
"Hayes is even greater this season because he has confidence in his shooting, from anywhere on the court," Lewis said. "He really took charge in the closing minutes against SMU."

The Houston All-America scored 20 points in the second half, most of them from outside, to offset a furious SMU rally that wiped out a 14-point deficit.

The Mustangs tied the score 72-72 with a 15-3 burst, but Hayes' basket with 1:57 remaining sent Houston ahead 76-73 and the nationally seventh-ranked Cougars hung on for their 24th victory in 27 starts.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina, 26-4, gained the semifinals by whipping No. 9 Boston College 96-80 behind Bob Lewis' 31 points in the East regional and unranked Dayton, 24-5, outlasted Virginia Tech in overtime 71-66 for the Mid East crown.

Consolation winners at the four NCAA regional playoffs were Princeton, which downed St. John's, N.Y., 78-58; Indiana, which beat Tennessee 51-44; Kansas, which got past disappointing Louisville 70-68, and Texas Western, which nipped Wyoming 69-67.



CLARENCE SMITH (#30) of So. Illinois and Marquette's George Thompson (#24) are airborne in different directions in a battle for the ball during the NIT finals held in New York Sat. afternoon. Looking on is Walt Frazier (#52) of So. Ill. The Salukis defeated the Warriors, 71-56, to win the tournament.

Charleston School Completion in June

CHARLESTON--The architect and contractor for the R-1 high school building said they believe the June 30 deadline for "substantial completion" of the new structure will be met, barring unforeseen delays in shipment of materials.

Richard Pearce of the architectural firm of Pearce and Pearce, Inc., St. Louis, delivered a progress report to the board of education in which he pointed out that the contractor has "essentially scraped his original schedule, and has prepared a new progress schedule for the finishing phases of the work."

A Tight Schedule

Based on the revised schedule, Pearce told the board, the completion date of June 30 appears to be feasible, but he warned "it appears to be a tight schedule, one which allows little latitude for any unforeseen lack of manpower, late deliveries of materials, etc."

R-1 officials stressed to contractor Ray Clinton and his job supervisors that the June 30 deadline is absolute. Superintendent Tom Wells told them the building will be needed in July for an in-service training workshop for high school teachers, and said the completion deadline will not be stretched. Clinton replied that the deadline will be met.

Pearce told the board his firm had contacted all the other contractors and equipment supplies, and all advised him that they would be able to deliver, install, or hook up their products prior to the contract completion date.

Open House Planned

Wells told the board that plans are underway for an open house to inaugurate the new building, but said no date had been selected as yet.

Progress on the new kindergarten building is somewhat slower than on the high school, Pearce told the board. The scheduled completion date on the building is March 31, but Pearce said it appears actual completion will be sometime after May 15.

A summary of next year's high school operating procedures, as prepared by CHS Principal Louis Chaney, was handed out to the board members for study. The report will be condensed for publication in this newspaper next week.

No Decision on Remodeling

The board tabled until a special meeting later this month any consideration of repairs and remodeling of the present high school building, pending a report on the cost of new heating equipment.

Superintendent Wells recommended, and the board approved the re-hiring of the following teachers for the 1967-68 school year:

Teachers Scarce

Assistant Superintendent Bill Sellers told the board recruiting of new secondary teachers is progressing well, but that elementary teachers are hard to find. He said in six weeks of interviews he had been able to contact only four elementary prospects.

Sellers said he hoped local persons qualified in elementary education would volunteer to teach next year if their family situations permit them to do so. "It would be a real public service" he added.

In other action at the board:

Received bids from two equipment firms on purchase of 16 new buses in exchange for the district's present fleet of 12. Ponder Equipment Co. bid $47,291.36 and Courtesy Ford bid $48,000. The board took the matter under advisement.

Amended a previous board policy to allow teachers over age 65 to be re-hired on a year-to-year basis on the recommendation of the administration. Under the former policy, 65 was the mandatory retirement age in the district.

Simpson Schools; grades four and five will be transferred from the Mark Twain to the Eugene Field School; special education classes will be transferred from the Eugene Field to the Mark Twain School. The change will make room for a music room and a library at the Eugene Field School, rooms for library, music, art, and physical education at the Mark Twain School, and an art-music room at the A. D. Simpson building. The Wyatt elementary school will be closed.

Received an attendance report which showed 93.6 per cent attendance in elementary schools for February; 91.7 per cent in the junior high; 93.3 per cent in high school; and 87 per cent in kindergarten.

A missing person is easier to find 10 years after he has disappeared than he is 10 days after such disappearance, according to a tracing company.

Progress Record of Cities at High Level

JEFFERSON CITY -- A study reveals that member towns and cities of the Missouri community betterment program have an impressive progress record in improvement of public utilities and services, school improvements and industrial expansions.

Henry Maddox, director of the State Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, which is charged with conducting the community betterment program, reports that in 1966 there were 210 Missouri communities entered in the activity.

"Our records show that while this represents less than 22 per cent of the total incorporated communities in the state eligible for membership, 85 per cent of all new and expanding industries in Missouri last year chose community betterment member-towns," Maddox stated.

"This would seem to indicate that towns and cities not participating in the program may be missing the chance to join in a successful cooperative venture designed solely to aid individual communities to help themselves," the director said. "In the member-towns there is a unique spirit of community awareness in the problems of better schools, streets, improved business buildings and other community improvements and, most important, a spirit of 'let's get together and get the job done'."

Gene Clack, director of the program for the commerce division, reported that there have been 245 bond issues passed in the 210 member towns totaling $87,815,000 for community improvements.

Clack's report also shows member communities built 387 miles of new streets; and improved 1,841 miles of existing streets. They added 301 miles of sewers; 567 miles of water mains; installed 12,215 street lights; added 1,715 school class rooms; gained 147 new industries; enjoyed 364 industrial expansions; employment increased by 24,521; added over 13,000 acres to their industrial sites; and almost 2,500 private businesses in the communities underwent improvements from new store fronts to complete remodeling.

"These are absolute facts that can be found through studies of progress, but there are other economic ramifications in member communities not readily noticeable," Clack said. "These communities also enjoyed many economic and social gains including higher retail sales, population growths, new and improved churches plus improvements to parks and other recreational facilities. And, these improvements were not limited to larger communities. They were in towns ranging from 91 to 39,000 in population located in every part of the state."

"Mr. Clack's report gives proof that any community can and will grow and prosper with proper planning and a continuing, cooperative, untiring effort by its citizens," Maddox said.

Cape Free to Award Contract For Runway

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. -- Cape Girardeau is free to award a contract for construction of a new 6500 - foot runway and make other improvements at its municipal airport after the Scott City city council withdrew objections to the proposal.

A 30 - day period in which a contract can be awarded on bids received in February expires Tuesday. Had the objections not been withdrawn the entire program would have been jeopardized, Cape Girardeau officials said.

Scott City filed the protest with the Federal Aviation Agency on grounds that location and alignment of the proposed runway might be hazardous and that noise from planes would be involved.

The runway extends in a general direction toward Scott City in the plans and is approximately a mile from the nearest building there.

Action to withdraw objections came after the Cape Girardeau city council adopted a resolution declaring it would do whatever it could to maintain safe air traffic patterns at the airport.

THE ART OF THANKSGIVING

The art of thanksgiving is thanksgiving. It is gratitude in action. It is applying Albert Schweitzer's philosophy: "In gratitude for your own good fortune you must render in return some sacrifice of your life for other life."

It is thanking God for the gift of life by living it triumphantly.

It is thanking God for your talents and abilities by accepting them as obligations to be invested for the common good.

It is thanking God for all that men and women have done for you by doing things for others.

It is thanking God for opportunities by accepting them as a challenge to achievement.

It is thanking God for happiness by striving to make others happy.

It is thanking God for beauty by helping to make the world more beautiful.

It is thanking God for inspiration by trying to be an inspiration to others.

It is thanking God for health and strength by the care and reverence you show your body.

It is thanking God for the creative ideas that enrich life by adding your own creative contributions to human progress.

It is thanking God for each new day by living it to the fullest.

It is thanking God by giving hands, arms, legs, and voice to your thankful spirit.

It is adding to your prayers of thanksgiving, acts of thanksgiving.

One reason you can take dependability of phone service for granted is because we don't.

We know you count on your telephone in all kinds of weather; sunny or stormy, fair or foul. That's why we take steps to insure service dependability no matter what Mother Nature dishes out.

One way we do this is by keeping a continuous flow of dry air under pressure in our telephone cables. If the protective cable covering is damaged, the force of the escaping air keeps moisture out. The drop in pressure alerts us to the trouble and we fix it in a hurry—before your service is affected.

Another way we protect your phone service is by providing standby electrical power for transmitting, switching and receiving calls. In the rare event commercial power is interrupted, we switch to our emergency system and your phone goes right on working.

Dependability of telephone service may be taken for granted by most people. But it has never been and never can be taken for granted by the men and women who provide that service.

Thomason to Review PAEOC Minutes

KENNETT -- Don Thomason, regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity of Kansas City, has requested the minutes of Tuesday night's meeting of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corp. that made major changes in the Bootheel OEO program.

The meeting saw the election of Robert Edwards of Benton as president of the DAEOC board, replacing Holcomb School Supt. James Dement, and the dismissal of Lloyd Phillips and William Graves from the professional staff of the regional OEO group.

Thomason requested minutes of both the regular and executive sessions of Tuesday night's meeting.

Both Phillips and Graves may appeal their dismissals. The two men have two weeks in which to file appeals to the DAEOC board, which under OEO regulations must review its earlier action and either accept or reject the appeals. Under the agency's rules, if the board sustains its earlier action, the two men may appeal to the regional office in Kansas City.

A question is expected to be raised within the next few days over the legality of the seating of members of the DAEOC board from Pemiscot County. The selection of that county's four delegates to the regional board resulted in a virtual free-for-all last month.

Thomason will have the right, under OEO regulations, to determine if the DAEOC board is properly elected and acted within the federal agency's regulations at the Portageville meeting Tuesday night.

The regional director is expected to review the minutes of the meeting next week.

Electric Union Vote Set For March 31

KENNETT -- Emerson Electric officials met with representatives of the National Labor Relations Board and the International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, AFL-CIO, and agreed that a secret ballot election be held in the Kennett plant March 31.

The election, involving all production and maintenance employes, will determine whether employes will be represented by the IUE union.

Two previous attempts to unionize the local plant were voted down -- one on Sept. 18, 1964 and the other on May 28, 1965.

Farmers Should Get Early Start

PORTAGEVILLE -- The 30-day weather outlook through the middle of April should enable Bootheel farmers to get off to an early start with the 1967 growing season. Temperatures are expected to average above normal over the period and rainfall is indicated to run near normal or a little below.

The first problem on many farms is to reduce soil moisture so that ground can be worked and planting of early crops completed before cotton goes into the ground in late April or early May. Nearly 2 inches more rain than is accounted for by evaporation usually can be expected. Much of this is eliminated by runoff where drainage is good.

Tracks of low pressure centers are expected to follow a path well to the north so that much of our precipitation will come to showers or thundershowers associated with passing cold fronts. In general three to four and one-half inches of rain can be expected. However, considerable variability can be expected from farm to farm because of the character of showery weather.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole from Mid-March through Mid-April is 4.38 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Caruthersville 4.54 inches; Fisk 4.47 inches; New Madrid 4.50 inches; Poplar Bluff 4.50 inches; Dexter 4.59 inches; Morehouse 4.51 inches; Parma 4.46 inches; and Sikeston 4.70 inches.

The majority of high pressure centers will move from the southwest across the Mississippi Valley close to the Bootheel region. This promises a chance for more open weather than usual and will help maintain good drying conditions. At the same time, milder temperatures are more likely with this pattern.

Wheat should get off to a fast start under this weather regime and agricultural chemicals should make effective contributions to fertility and weed control. Soils are likely to warm more rapidly and show less tendency for dipping far below critical levels for all crops except cotton.

By paying particular attention to the five-day weather outlook, farmers will be able to take maximum advantage of warm periods for most favorable germination and emergence.

Beginning April 1, Agricultural weather stations in the Bootheel will report daily through the ESSA-Weather Bureau wire service. Highest and lowest air and soil temperatures as well as rainfall for the previous 24 hour period will be available from Portageville, Kennett, Malden, Poplar Bluff, Charleston and Sikeston.

The ESSA --Weather wire service is installed at radio stations KBOA Kennett, KCRV Caruthersville, KSIM and KMPL Sikeston, KTCB Malden, KMIS Portageville, and KFVS Cape Girardeau.

Bluff Woman Shot to Death

POPLAR BLUFF -- Mrs. Mamie Margaret Robbins, 61, of Poplar Bluff, was found shot to death about 9:45 a.m. in her home on Highway 67 North Thursday.

Mrs. Wilma Smith, daughter of Mrs. Robbins, entered the locked house with her own key and found the shooting victim lying in the floor of her bedroom with a gunshot wound through the neck. A .38-caliber revolver was found between her legs. Three cartridges in the chamber of the pistol had been snapped, but only one exploded, according to investigating highway patrolmen. There were powder burns on Mrs. Robbins' hands and face.

As investigation of the death is being continued by the Butler County Sheriff's Department, Coroner Wallace Fitch and the Highway Patrol. An inquest will probably be held soon.

The victim lived alone and was reportedly despondent since her husband's death, in May of last year.

THE PERCH THAT'S NOT A PERCH

Ocean perch -- found in food stores usually as frozen fillets -- aren't really perch. But that has no adverse affect on its fine flavor and popularity.

The trade name, ocean perch, was agreed on by the fishing industry to identify the small North Atlantic fish otherwise known by several names which allude to its reddish-colored skin. They are not, however, related to the freshwater yellow perch.

The "meat" of this fish is popular both for its delicate flavor and ease of preparation. These small fillets -- about eight in a pound -- can be prepared readily in any of the usual methods of fish cookery.

OCEAN PERCH TURBANS

2 lbs. ocean perch fillets, frozen
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Bread stuffing
¼ cup butter or other fat, melted
3 slices bacon

For Stuffing:

Cook 3 tablespoons chopped onion and ¾ cup chopped celery in 1-3rd cup butter until tender. Combine and mix thoroughly with 1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1 teaspoon thyme, sage, or savory seasoning, and 1 quart soft bread cubes. If stuffing seems very dry, moisten with 1 tablespoon water, milk, or fish stock.

Thaw fillets. Skin. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Line 12 well-greased muffin tins with fillets, overlapping ends. Divide bread stuffing into 12 equal portions; shape into balls. Place a ball of stuffing in center of each filler. Brush tops with butter and place ¼ slice of bacon on each. Bake at 350 degrees F., for 25 to 30 minutes or until fish flakes.

Dement Defends Two Fired DAEOC Directors

HOLCOMB -- James Dement, superintendent of the Holcomb public schools and former president of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation issued a statement in defense of Lloyd Phillips and Bill Graves, who were dismissed as DAEOC directors Monday night.

In regard to the board members responsible for dismissing Graves and Phillips, Dement noted that Monday night's meeting was the first meeting for 16 of the DAEOC members and they took action on an audit which most of them "knew little about and had never seen."

Dement, stated that these new members "fired two men for office practices considered inefficient, for a period of time for which they were not responsible. The audit covered a period from December 2, 1965 to August 1, 1966 -- the period when Earl Williams was in charge and responsible for office practices. He was dismissed on August 29, 1966."

Dement said that at no time was Graves ever accused of dual employment. He said it was insinuated at the Monday meeting that Graves and Phillips signed checks of people who had been dual employed. "I'd like to point out that both of these boys were only countersigners and that Williams was the director at that time."

The former DAEOC president said the dual employment occurred over a year ago. Kansas City investigated and suggested Williams be replaced. Phillips, Alex Cooper and Mike Cooper, then working in the office, were cleared of having anything to do with the responsibility of the office practices.

"There was no valid reason for accusing Graves and Phillips of dual employment. They were accused because they were signing checks and holding down outside jobs. They did keep their jobs, after appointment to DAEOC positions, until their former employes could replace them, but they offered to pay back to DAEOC the salary received during this period. After Phillips resigned on August 29 there were no checks signed between that date and September 12 and no one received their pay or funds. On this date Phillips was authorized to be signer and Graves counter-signer until a new director was hired.

"Only three board members were on the new board and present at the meeting who were on the old board -- Rev. Betts of Charleston, Larney McNear of Rives and Dement."

CHARACTER OR CONVENIENCE?

With something like 7,000 varieties of rice known to exist, the American homemaker would have a frightful time deciding which to select if her local food store carried anywhere near all of them.

Fortunately, only about a dozen are raised commercially in this country. . . and these varieties are conveniently grouped as long - grain, medium - grain or short-grain, points out the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Americans generally prefer long - grain rice, which accounts for more than half the U. S. production. Long - grains are fluffy, dry and not sticky when cooked. In contrast, most persons from the Far East prefer grains which do stick together . . . the better for eating with chopsticks, perhaps.

There are other differences in the rice we find on grocers' shelves, however. And a homemaker's decision may depend on whether she wants more convenience or more character in her rice.

BROWN RICE probably would be rated as having the most character. It has an interesting nut - like flavor and a slightly chewy texture. But these grains have gone through only a minimum of processing and require more water and longer cooking.

REGULAR WHITE RICE no doubt would win most popularity polls. It keeps best, is clean and requires only average cooking.

PARBOILED RICE requires longer cooking and more liquid than regular rice, but it retains more of the natural nutrients. Grains also are noticeably more plump and "unsticky."

PRE-COOKED RICE is the answer to homemakers in a big hurry. The epitome of convenience, this grain needs only to have its moisture restored. It is fully cooked and dehydrated.

Legislature Strives to Upgrade Missouri Education.. Mackey

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Missouri legislature is making strides to overcome the shortcomings of the state in public education, Earl Mackey state representative from the 155th district, said Friday.

Mackey, a member of the house education and interstate cooperation committees, addressed about 100 school superintendents from Southeast Missouri at the school administrators division meeting of the annual two-day district educators conference.

Preceding Mackey's address, Joe Russell, president of the Cape Girardeau board of education, explained the goals of the national education assessment program.

Mackey said he feels that Missourians are becoming more concerned with the deficiencies in public education throughout the state and that this concern is being reflected in the current legislature. "This is an education-minded legislature," he remarked.

To illustrate this statement, the representative outlined the 14 proposals made by the legislature to improve the lot of Missouri schools:

One bill that has passed in the house and is now in the senate is the interstate compact of education, which allows Missouri to join with other states to discuss education problems. The compact sets up a clearing house for the interchange of educational ideas among states.

"This bill would help the states keep control of education," Mackey said. Solving problems in education by the states would reduce the need for federal intervention in public education, he added.

Another bill provides that the boards of education may estimate the average pupil attendance for the next year rather than the current year in applying for state funds, as is done now.

If the school expects an increase in enrollment, the board could make note of such increases, Mackey explained. There are two versions of this bill -- one from the house and one from the senate. "The house bill is less limited than the senate bill," he remarked, pointing out that under the senate bill only an anticipated increase in attendance during the next year. The house bill has no quota restrictions.

The controversial "shared-time bill" is another measure designed to improve education in Missouri, Mackey continued. This bill, which has been passed by the house, allows handicapped children enrolled in private and parochial schools to received special education in public schools.

If passed, these children would receive state financial aid to attend those special education classes. The bill, however, has become involved in the religious education conflict and probably will not pass in the senate, Mackey said.

A bill which has passed the house and the senate provides state support for kindergarten programs. Missouri lags behind many states because it has no state supported kindergarten program, Mackey explained.

A scholarship bill which sets up 12 scholarships from each congressional district and four at large to help needy students has been passed by the house, Mackey said. This bill provides $500 scholarships for attendance at state colleges and is designed to keep students in the state.

Another bill designed to raise the quality of education in Missouri would require that a teacher have a master's degree or 32 hours of college credit beyond the bachelor's degree to obtain a lifetime certificate to teach in the state.

A sixth education measure proposed by the legislature calls for the establishment of a Missouri school reorganization commission. "The one-room schoolhouse still exists in the state," Mackey noted. Good school districts are adjacent to districts offering an inadequate curriculum to meet the needs of its population, he added.

This commission would study the education facilities and needs throughout the state and make recommendations for guidelines toward school reorganization.

Another bill calls for a constitutional amendment to provide transportation for public, private and parochial pupils out of state welfare funds. If the bill passes, it must be submitted in a referendum to Missouri voters as a proposed constitutional amendment.

A bill still in the house education committee calls for raising the compulsory attendance age in public schools from 16 to 17. A student would have to be 17 years old before he could drop out of school.

Mackey expressed confidence that a special education bill providing for large increases in state aid to handicapped (exceptional) children would be passed by the legislature. One of the shortcomings of this bill is that it has no provisions for increase in state aid for the gifted child, Mackey stated.

A bill still in committee would prohibit the refueling of school buses while passengers are on the bus. Some danger exists to the passengers when they are aboard during refueling, he explained.

To better the lot of teachers, the legislature has proposed a bill providing that a school district with five or more certified employes be given 30 or more minutes for lunch with no assigned duties, Mackey pointed out.

Missouri lags behind many other states in the field of educational television, he continued. To offset this, a bill still in committee calls for establishing a state educational television authority. Twenty-nine states have or are constructing facilities to utilize television in classroom education, he noted, and Missouri needs such facilities to keep pace in the modern education techniques.

Another bill -- the teacher-tenure bill -- applying to all full-time teachers, administrators, counselors and school nurses states that the employe would attain permanent status after three years in the school system and could not be dismissed except for some specific reason. Reasons for dismissal would include immoral behavior, incompetence in performance of duties and other specifically stated reasons. Dismissal could be effected only after a full and fair hearing, Mackey said.

A money bill in the senate provides for a $10 million increase in the school foundation fund. This is not an adequate increase to meet the needs, Mackey said, but any increase in the fund would be an improvement.

"Legislators only pass the laws," the representative stated. He charged the administrators to make the laws effective. If a law is not carried out on the local level, it is of little value, he pointed out.

"Missouri needs to make greater efforts to improve the lot of its educators," he added. The newer crop of teachers will be making legitimate demands for higher wages and better working conditions to upgrade their profession, he noted. If teachers cannot improve their lot in Missouri, they will go elsewhere to practice their profession in states where their demands are being met, Mackey pointed out.

The legislature and the local education administrators "must redress the teachers' grievances" or else they will be dealing with a teacher's union, Mackey concluded.

Joe Russell, a Cape Girardeau attorney, reviewed work being done by the exploratory committee for nationwide assessment of education.

Russell traced the history of nationwide assessment of education, which began in 1963 when the Carnegie Foundation was approached by citizens who asked if anything could be done to determine the level of education throughout the country.

The alarm of the citizenry grew out of charges that "Johnny can't read or write." Studies have refuted these charges, but have also raised the question, "Johnny can read, but exactly what can he read?" Russell pointed out. "We must be able to give adequate and well-founded answers," he said.

Some of the questions raised concerned the adequacy of testing programs and whether proper use was made of testing programs.

The Carnegie Foundation undertook to find out how feasible it was to determine the general education levels throughout the country and concluded that such a study could be done. Dr. Ralph Tyler was asked to chair the committee, which was charged with two responsibilities:

1. To confer with school administrators, school boards and educators to see how such an evaluation could be made.

2. To develop and tryout instruments and procedures to implement the programs.

With this charge the committee set out statements of objectives by calling on those persons knowledgeable in the field, then called on others to appraise and criticize the recommended objectives, Russell explained.

After these objectives were formulated, the Tyler committee approached four major firms that devise educational tests to have tests drawn up which could measure levels of American education. Many of these tests were recommended by the study committee to be sent back to the test firms for further development.

Russell, who was one of the members of the committee invited to San Francisco to study the recommendations of the Tyler committee, said the study group spent two days going over the test exercises drawn up by the firms.

Russell said that he was worried at first that the evaluation of education on a nationwide scale would lead to federal involvement in and control of public education, but that he no longer thinks such federal control will result from the study.

The proposed evaluation has been opposed by many who fear the federal government will take over public education or use the results of the tests to determine allocations of federal funds to public education.

The tests will not be administered on a universal basis, Russell pointed out, but rather from a random sample of 256 test groups.

The sample will be drawn from four geographic regions with regard to age groups (9, 13, 17 and adult), sex, socio-economic groups and demographic criteria (urban, suburban and rural), he explained. Included in the tests will be 3,000 to 4,000 exercises, ranging from written work to interviews, uses of motion pictures and filmstrips and other education testing methods.

A protest will be made to determine the validity of the tests. These protests will be evaluated and revised if necessary before the final tests are administered, he noted. Administration of the tests is expected to begin in the latter part of 1967.

"The public is entitled to know what it is getting for its school tax dollar," Russell said. "Sooner or later someone is going to have to do something about the assessment of education." He noted that Congress wrote into the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 a provision for this national testing.

The knowledge of the levels of education throughout the country is vital, he continued. The mobility of the population requires such knowledge, he explained, pointing out that the constant shift of population requires that all school districts provide superior education. A student who transfers from one school district to another will become the problem of that district if the student's previous district has failed to provide an adequate education, Russell remarked.

OVER DEATH VICTORIOUS

Lo we saved by faith in God
Following the path that Jesus trod,
Death is the gray shades of dawn.
The beginning of a glorious morn.

Halleluiah we joufully sing
Oh, grave where is thy victory
Oh, death where is thy sting

If we walk the straight narrow way
Death is the beginning of eternal day.
We fear not death but gladly go
His conquer is with us we know.

Halleluiah, we joyfully sing!
Oh, death where is thy victory?
Oh grave where is thy sting?

Education

Every man has two educations - that which is given to him, and the other, that which he gives himself. Of the two kinds, the latter is by far the most valuable. Indeed all that is most worthy in man, he must work out and conquer for himself. It is that, that constitutes our real and best nourishment. What we are merely taught, seldom nourishes the mind like that, which we teach ourselves. -- Richter.

State Tax Hike Likely By 1970

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Looking into the future is a precarious business, but all the studies indicate Missouri must face the possibility of a tax increase by 1969 or 1970.

It won't happen before then because Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has pledged he will not increase taxes during this four-year term. He is running for a second term in 1968 —although no formal announcement has been made.

But all the experts say he cannot make the same pledge during his second term.

This was brought out clearly this week in Senate debate on the so-called Heller plan to memorialize Congress to adopt some form of tax sharing with the states. Both houses adopted the memorial.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, an advocate of the Heller plan along with the governor, said that if Missouri is to share in the estimated $65 million that would be available under the tax sharing proposal, some form of state tax increase would be necessary.

As of now, the best guess is that the increase would come in the form of increased personal income taxes, increased liquor taxes or some other area where Missouri ranks among the lowest of the states.

According to a study by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Missouri's efforts to raise revenue locally are sixth lowest in the nation.

The governor argues, as he did in a speech at Atlanta this week, that the states should be given more leeway to study their problems and solve them, without federal pre-emption of most tax sources.

In that speech he cited the federal highway beautification requirements and Title 19 of the "Medicaid" law as two outstanding examples of the way the federal government requires states to meet federal standards or lose federal grants.

"For many years" he said, "we have been drawing closer to a 'big brother' concept of government — a concept that adds more and more controls over intimate portions of our lives. . .

"We are being asked to accept the theory that all ills in our society must be cured by government far removed because you and I — and all our fellow citizens - are indifferent or incapable of applying the equally time honored American tradition of lifting ourselves by our own boot-straps."

At another point he said:

"I believe that the Heller plan would aid all the states because under the present grants in aid from the federal government, we have only a small portion of the money we send to Washington trickling back, narrowly restricted by mandates of time and procedure fashioned and forwarded from Washington. . .

"Our country has been a sanctuary of freedom for three centuries. I realize that our increasingly complex society necessarily demands more conformity by all of us.

"But I do not believe that the fact our lives are more complicated and that there are more of us each year should curtail the basic freedoms which have been inherent in the lives of all of us who lived through the decades before the 'soaring sixties'."

The governor's views were reflected in the bipartisan support he got in both houses for memorials asking Congress to consider the Heller plan or some other tax sharing proposal.

Sen. John E. Downs, D - St. Joseph, said that no problem would have arisen if the legislature of Missouri and other states had met their responsibilities to take care of such problems as highways, education, mental health and others.

"We do not come into this with clean hands," he said in citing a familiar rule of law in equity cases.

Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R - Versailles, said even under reapportionment, the fault lies with the legislatures which have gerrymander congessional districts to keep in office men who are responsible for letting the federal government make unreasonable demands upon the states.

"We have aided and abetted in this thing by keeping these people in office," he said.

Sen. Spradling, who is an officer of the Council of State Governments, dated the downgrading of state powers to the demands of the second World War.

He said "Missouri was backward then and is backward now" in many fields.

The governor's views are expected to be presented Monday and Tuesday in Washington at a seminar on tax sharing at Brookings Institute. He will be represented there by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, who joins Hearnes in approving the Heller plan or some similar tax sharing system.

Eagleton will attend a subcommittee of the National Governors' Conference, which approved the Heller plan to give the states a share of federal money with no strings attached.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE COCKEYED CAPER

Barney decided to support his neighborhood bank by holding it up. He soon discovered, however, that the path of crime was even rockier than the road to success. As he dashed out of the bank, Barney found himself confronted by two police officers who were approaching him, one from the left and one from the right.

Spotting a gun in his hand, the two officers screeched to a halt and, taking careful aim, fired their own guns at desperado Barney as he stood betwixt and between them. One bullet whizzed past Barney's right ear, going in one direction, and and the other bullet zoomed past his left ear going in the other direction.

When the smoke cleared, Barney remained unharmed. The two police officers, however, proved less fortunate. Instead of hitting Barney, the two police officers had shot and killed each other. But what amazed Barney even more, he was charged with murder.

"But, I didn't kill anybody," Barney protested in court. "It was like a Keystone comedy. The two cops shot each other. Because they couldn't shoot any straighter than a pair of cock-eyed pool players surely isn't my fault."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Barney of murder?W

This is how the judge ruled: Guilty! The judge held that in attempting the holdup Barney knew that force would be used against him; that he became responsible for the consequences of his act and the force used against him.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise. (Luke 23:43)

PRAYER: O Lord, help us to face this day with confidence. May we rely upon Thee in faith, confident Thou canst turn any defeat into victory. In the life to come may we know the joy of richer fellowship with Thee. In Thy spirit we ask. Amen.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: We at Planned Parenthood are deeply concerned about the comment you made to the 16-year-old high school girl whose friend was having pre-marital relations with her steady. It seems the girl asked her friend what she would do if she became pregnant. Her friend laughed and replied, "The pill never fails."

You said, and I quote: "I have received letters from other teen-age girls who also laughed and said, 'The pill never fails.' They stopped laughing when the doctor said, 'You are pregnant.'"

It is one thing to counsel a young girl against pre-marital sex. It is quite another thing to undermine the confidence that millions of women have in a well-proven contraceptive.

You strongly implied in your reply that the pill frequently fails to give contraceptive protection. I am sure you know, Ann Landers, that the pill is practically 100% effective when taken properly.

Many anxiety-ridden women will find their faith in the pill shattered by your statement. Planned Parenthood Centers around the country are sure to be bombarded by calls as a result of your comment. We sincerely hope you will say something to correct this unhappy impression. --REV. DON C. SHAW, PLANNED PARENTHOOD, CHICAGO.

Dear Rev. Shaw: I, too, have been bombarded with letters and calls -- from Planned Parenthood members all over the country -- and I'd like to set the record straight.

I am NOT opposed to married couples deliberately controlling the size of their families. I encourage birth control when it is not in conflict with religious training. And it is heartening to note that the outmoded concept that a woman has the moral obligation to produce as many children as "God sends her" has been abandoned by many contemporary religious leaders whose predecessors felt otherwise. My personal belief is that birth control is the only answer to the population explosion.

Your statement that the pill is practically 100% effective when taken properly is correct. And this is the point I wish to emphasize. The proper way to take the pill is under the supervision of a physician. You can be sure that the teen-agers who are taking the pill are not doing so under a physician's instruction.

Some teen-agers, and adults as well, are under the impression that the pill taken just before they go out will prevent conception for 24 hours. They are the ones who get pregnant. Moreover, the pill is not for everyone. In some instances the pill has produced serious side effects. This fact has been pointed out repeatedly by Dr. James L. Goddard, Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. Women with a history of tumors or clotting might be well advised to use other contraceptive devices. The decision should be made by a physician.

Giving advice is an awesome responsibility and I do not take it lightly. I have an obligation to my readers to make certain the counsel I give is correct. I would be failing my readers miserably if I did not alert them to the facts about the pill, and the facts are as I have stated them.

When necking become petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

To the Editor
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

R. C. Martin says:

Man in our day, it appears, is floundering in a vacuum of hopelessness, fear, and despair.

I would think that the great minds, educators and so, would be performing a much greater service to science and human prosperity and happiness if they spent more time in teaching us how to discover ourselves.

Throughout the annals of mankind the highest achievement of the human race have depended upon the individual and his ability to express his individuality.

All thinking men know that there is a strong undercurrent that is sweeping up and down the length and breath of our land trying to destroy the willingness of the individual to think for himself.

Civilization can rise no higher than the height of its individual members.

If every man and woman would begin today to develop the best that is in him or her, we should have a new world of achievement, perhaps a new world, far greater in the arts and industries than anything heretofore conceived.

The richest mine in the world is the one within yourself.

Sincerely yours,
R. C. Martin

winning a military victory."

Rusk, McNamara and Westmoreland said several times that the afternoon of talk produced no discussion of sending more American troops to Vietnam- above those already planned - or about specific military measures.

Rusk made one announcement to newsmen: He said Johnson will nominate Henry Cabot Lodge, who is resigning as ambassador to Saigon, to be a full-time ambassador at large, a sort of diplomatic troubleshooter. In that position he will change places with Ellsworth Bunker, who is replacing him in Saigon.

Rusk said the emphasis in the first round of talks was on the civilian side - political processes, pacification, economic matters. He said talk of military affairs was confined to a brief report.

He stressed twice that, as he sees it, the government of South Vietnam is in full accord with the search for peace.

McNamara said despite the new Communist offensives moves, their efforts have been unsuccessful, their morale is suffering and their losses are running 60 per cent higher than a year ago.

Westmoreland said that in the past year, Communist losses from all causes have doubled, the number of prisoners taken has increased fourfold, defectors have doubled, their losses of weapons are two and a half times higher, and only half of their 154 maneuver battalions are fully combat effective.

Johnson had indicated in advance that his main purpose at the Guam conference would be to discuss the works of peace. He told the opening session of the two-nation conference that more effective efforts are required on all fronts - military, social, economic and political.

Ky responded by rejecting the idea of ever admitting representatives of the National Liberation Front - the political arm of the Viet Cong-to any coalition government that might take power in Saigon after peace talks.

The dapper little premier was equally pointed in a series of questions all in effect calling for a major escalation of the U.S. war effort.

Said Ky: "How long can Hanoi enjoy the advantage of restricted bombing of military targets? How long can the Viet Cong be permitted to take sancturary in Cambodia, be allowed to regroup and come back at their will? How long can the North be permitted to infiltrate soldiers and weapons across the demarcation line?"

The American delegation meeting with the Vietnamese on Nimitz Hill, the U.S. Navy headquarters overlooking the island, included Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Ellsworth Bunker, who soon will replace Lodge in Saigon.

Leading the Vietnamese, who will fly home Tuesday, were Ky and chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu.

physical facilities were presented for the committee's consideration.

Based on the engineering report and the facts presented, the advisory committee concluded that since the additional revenues received would be sufficient to pay for the revenue bond issue, it would be to the advantage of Sikeston residents to purchase the Missouri Utilities properties located in Sikeston.

About 2,000 customers would be added to the city's electric utility roll. The new electric customers will receive an immediate rate reduction of at least five per cent and in some cases more, depending on kilowatt hour consumption.

The additional revenue received from the facilities operation would be sufficient to pay the added operating expense and retire the revenue bonds issued for the purchase, the board noted.

An election for the bond issue has been set for May 2. Approval of the purchase requires a 4/7ths majority of the votes cast.

Based on the present income and expense ratio, annual savings would be realized, which could be used for a general rate reduction and improvements to the city's electrical system.

If voter approval is received and the transfer is approved by the Missouri Public Service Commission, the Missouri Utility facilities will be integrated into the city's system on Nov. 1, 1967. The transaction will prevent the necessity of building duplicate lines and services, the board said.

Mercury vapor street lighting would be furnished to all areas of the city not presently served by the city, the board reported.

Passenger elevators were invented in 1857.

MATTHEWS -- Twenty seven cars of a Frisco freight train derailed at 4 a.m. Sunday in the northeast edge of this New Madrid county town. There were more than 100 cars in the northbound train.

No one was injured.

The pileup of cars presented an awesome sight. It caused heavy damage to cars loaded with freight. The cars were jostled and forced off tracks. Many overturned. Wheels were stripped off some cars.

Trains were rerouted until the damage was repaired at 11 p.m. last night and service was restored.

The engineer was P. E. Duncan, of Chaffee, and the conductor was C. H. Young of Illmo.

The pile up of cars occurred a few hundred yards north of the highway H crossing into Matthews.

It was believed to have started when the train passed switching tracks.

Those at the end were taken south.

Inspectors began an investigation of the cause of the derailment, which was not immediately determined.

Budget Bills At Top

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Appropriations topped the list when the House returned to work today.

The budget bills gained first round approval last week and the goal is to pass them before the Houses recesses for its Easter vacation Wednesday.

The Senate Appropriations Committee will start hearings on them next Monday.

Another important subject -- congressional reapportionment -- occupied the Senate Apportionment Committee in executive session today. At the last report the committee was still wrestling with the problem of complying with a federal court's one man - one vote requirement.

A bill to prohibit wiretapping comes up before a Senate committee tonight while the House Insurance Committee struggles with a broad insurance code revision recommended by the State Division of Insurance.

A Senate committee will hear opponents to a similar bill tonight.

As the session nears the halfway mark, committees of both houses have been admonished to look carefully at all bills because the calendars of both the House and Senate are getting jammed.

The Senate has run into hours of debate on relatively minor measures and as a result many major bills are far down the list awaiting debate and amendment.

The rule of thumb is that if you don't get your bill out of your own house by the end of March its chances of passage are dim.

Here Are Coloring Contest Rules

Easter coloring contest rules were omitted accidentally from Saturday's issue:

"The contest is open to all children in this area, aged two to 12. Paint, pencil or crayon may be used. Entries must be submitted no later than 5 p.m. Friday, March 24. Judges decision will be final."

Egg Hunt In Malone Park Sunday

The annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Junior Women's club will be held Saturday in Malone park. Co-chairmen are Ava Allen and Carol McArthur.

Youngsters one to 10 can participate. Chief of Police Arthur Bruce will begin the festivities at 9 a.m.

Children, one through three, will hunt between 9 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. The four through six - year - olds will hunt between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. and the seven through 10 year-olds will hunt between 11 a.m. and noon.

Prizes will be given in each age group for the child finding the most eggs and the child who finds the golden egg.

Pledges No Utility Rate Raise

Members of the Board of Public Works pledged that no rate increase will be applied if the purchase of the Missouri Utility Co. facilities is effected.

The board made the announcement at a financial advisory committee meeting with representatives of Sikeston financial institutions Wednesday at the Rustic Rock.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss and review the economic feasibility study prepared by the Burns-McDonnell Engineering firm regarding the purchase of the facilities.

Mayor Kendall Sikes and members of the Board of Public works also were present. Facts concerning rates, taxes and

Three Vie In Council Post Race

A total of 3,703 voted in the last general election held April 5, 1966, when Lee Shell and Harry Dudley were elected to the council. A primary was not required in that race, city clerk John Vaughn said today.

Three candidates have filed for the three-year council post of Arthur Ziegenhorn. His term expires April 4.

Ziegenhorn has refiled for the post. Also in the running are Hugh T. McCollum and James Clark.

Voters will cast their ballot for only one candidate in the primary. They will scratch out two names on the ballot. The remaining unmarked name is the voters' choice.

The two candidates who receive the highest number of votes in the primary will oppose each other in the general election April 4, Vaughn said.

Polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Absentee votes, which are cast today will be counted Wednesday, Vaughn said.

Guam Opinions Clash

GUAM (AP) - President Johnson's avowed intent to focus his Guam conference on the works of peace clashed today into a call by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for a sharp escalation of the Vietnam war.

Johnson also got a report from his own close advisors that the Communists are doing some escalating of their own.

At the first formal conference session, atop the highest hill on this damp tropical island, Ky in his opening public statement questioned whether the time had not come for the United States to bomb Hanoi, block the harbor at Haiphong and expand the war into Laos and Cambodia.

The public expressions of such questions made it apparent that Ky thinks the United States should do all those things. But both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, meeting with newsmen after the session, emphasized repeatedly that there was no discussion of escalation. Rusk contended that Ky raised his questions only in the context that Hanoi is unwilling to seek peace.

However, both McNamara and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, said Johnson was told that the fighting in South Vietnam is becoming more intense and the Communists are stepping up the tempo of their offensive operations.

McNamara said the chief executive's military advisers reported: "The tempo of the war has increased significantly in recent weeks but, despite this fact, they believe the trend of the war is in our favor."

He said the Communists are using new weapons - rockets and bigger mortars - and are making an unsuccessful effort "to seize the initiative."

"The enemy is by no means beaten," said the defense chief, "but he is no longer capable of

2,500 See World of Good Turns

The annual exposition of the Okeechobee district of the Boy Scouts, "A World of Good Turns", drew 2,500 Scouts and visitors to the Armory Saturday to witness scouting in action.

The theme came into view from a 10 by 10 foot unisphere on the front lawn. Inside the building was decorated with space age satellites hanging from the ceiling. Small model missiles raced from one end of the auditorium to the other.

Scouting activities were displayed around the auditorium, where 12 Cub Packs, 13 Boy Scout troops and eight Explorer posts, depicted their activities.

Troop 43 camped outside.

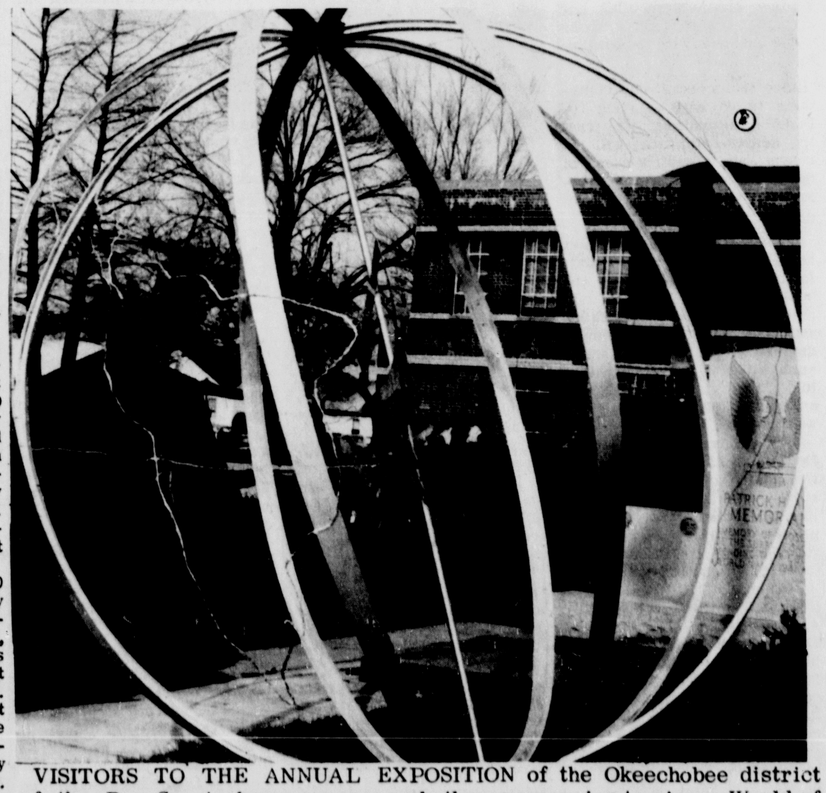
Scout troops were from Charleston, East Praire, New Madrid, Oran, Morehouse, Bertrand and Sikeston, with eight Explorer posts from Sikeston, and Cub Packs from Blodgett, Morley, Bertrand, Vanduser, New Madrid, Morehouse, Matthews and Sikeston.

In charge of the event were Eddie Schrader, scout executive, Don Agnew, council chairman; Bill Pinnell, general chairman; Jim Green, district activities; Dale Beaird, printed program, and publicity; Bob Bozell, tickets; Richard Fussell, program; John Harper, concessions; Jack Conyers, pinewood derby; Rev. Lindy Cannon, space derby; Bill Munger, swimming pool director; Glenn Keller, awards chairman and Jerry Griffin, participation chairman.



VISITORS TO THE ANNUAL EXPOSITION of the Okeechobee district of the Boy Scouts knew on approach they were going to view a World of Good Turns. The global nature of the show was symbolized by this unisphere on the armory lawn.

Swallows Arrive On Schedule

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) - The swallows are back at Mission San Juan Capistrano for their 176th summer.

The birds arrived Sunday from their winter quarters in Argentina on the traditional day, St. Joseph Day, a Roman Catholic religious holiday.

Only once in 177 years did the swallows not appear, mission fathers say. About 60 years ago, they were two days late because of bad weather over the West Coast.

Optimist Club Hears Minister

The Rev. James Estep, Methodist minister at Morehouse, a school teacher and a flight instructor, spoke to the Optimist club today at breakfast at the Rustic Rock, on "Proof Whether There is a God."

"Why should we think there is no God, when we know He suffered, and why should we think there is no God when we too suffer?" he asked.

George Jenkins of the Cape Girardeau Evening club was a guest.

Budget Bills At Top

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Appropriations topped the list when the House returned to work today.

The budget bills gained first round approval last week and the goal is to pass them before the Houses recesses for its Easter vacation Wednesday.

The Senate Appropriations Committee will start hearings on them next Monday.

Another important subject -- congressional reapportionment -- occupied the Senate Apportionment Committee in executive session today. At the last report the committee was still wrestling with the problem of complying with a federal court's one man - one vote requirement.

A bill to prohibit wiretapping comes up before a Senate committee tonight while the House Insurance Committee struggles with a broad insurance code revision recommended by the State Division of Insurance.

A Senate committee will hear opponents to a similar bill tonight.

As the session nears the halfway mark, committees of both houses have been admonished to look carefully at all bills because the calendars of both the House and Senate are getting jammed.

The Senate has run into hours of debate on relatively minor measures and as a result many major bills are far down the list awaiting debate and amendment.

The rule of thumb is that if you don't get your bill out of your own house by the end of March its chances of passage are dim.

Here Are Coloring Contest Rules

Easter coloring contest rules were omitted accidentally from Saturday's issue:

"The contest is open to all children in this area, aged two to 12. Paint, pencil or crayon may be used. Entries must be submitted no later than 5 p.m. Friday, March 24. Judges decision will be final."

Egg Hunt In Malone Park Sunday

The annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Junior Women's club will be held Saturday in Malone park. Co-chairmen are Ava Allen and Carol McArthur.

Youngsters one to 10 can participate. Chief of Police Arthur Bruce will begin the festivities at 9 a.m.

Children, one through three, will hunt between 9 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. The four through six - year - olds will hunt between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. and the seven through 10 year-olds will hunt between 11 a.m. and noon.

Prizes will be given in each age group for the child finding the most eggs and the child who finds the golden egg.

Pledges No Utility Rate Raise

Members of the Board of Public Works pledged that no rate increase will be applied if the purchase of the Missouri Utility Co. facilities is effected.

The board made the announcement at a financial advisory committee meeting with representatives of Sikeston financial institutions Wednesday at the Rustic Rock.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss and review the economic feasibility study prepared by the Burns-McDonnell Engineering firm regarding the purchase of the facilities.

Mayor Kendall Sikes and members of the Board of Public works also were present. Facts concerning rates, taxes and

Three Vie In Council Post Race

A total of 3,703 voted in the last general election held April 5, 1966, when Lee Shell and Harry Dudley were elected to the council. A primary was not required in that race, city clerk John Vaughn said today.

Three candidates have filed for the three-year council post of Arthur Ziegenhorn. His term expires April 4.

Ziegenhorn has refiled for the post. Also in the running are Hugh T. McCollum and James Clark.

Voters will cast their ballot for only one candidate in the primary. They will scratch out two names on the ballot. The remaining unmarked name is the voters' choice.

The two candidates who receive the highest number of votes in the primary will oppose each other in the general election April 4, Vaughn said.

Polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Absentee votes, which are cast today will be counted Wednesday, Vaughn said.

Guam Opinions Clash

GUAM (AP) - President Johnson's avowed intent to focus his Guam conference on the works of peace clashed today into a call by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for a sharp escalation of the Vietnam war.

Johnson also got a report from his own close advisors that the Communists are doing some escalating of their own.

At the first formal conference session, atop the highest hill on this damp tropical island, Ky in his opening public statement questioned whether the time had not come for the United States to bomb Hanoi, block the harbor at Haiphong and expand the war into Laos and Cambodia.

The public expressions of such questions made it apparent that Ky thinks the United States should do all those things. But both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, meeting with newsmen after the session, emphasized repeatedly that there was no discussion of escalation. Rusk contended that Ky raised his questions only in the context that Hanoi is unwilling to seek peace.

However, both McNamara and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, said Johnson was told that the fighting in South Vietnam is becoming more intense and the Communists are stepping up the tempo of their offensive operations.

McNamara said the chief executive's military advisers reported: "The tempo of the war has increased significantly in recent weeks but, despite this fact, they believe the trend of the war is in our favor."

He said the Communists are using new weapons - rockets and bigger mortars - and are making an unsuccessful effort "to seize the initiative."

"The enemy is by no means beaten," said the defense chief, "but he is no longer capable of

2,500 See World of Good Turns

The annual exposition of the Okeechobee district of the Boy Scouts, "A World of Good Turns", drew 2,500 Scouts and visitors to the Armory Saturday to witness scouting in action.

The theme came into view from a 10 by 10 foot unisphere on the front lawn. Inside the building was decorated with space age satellites hanging from the ceiling. Small model missiles raced from one end of the auditorium to the other.

Scouting activities were displayed around the auditorium, where 12 Cub Packs, 13 Boy Scout troops and eight Explorer posts, depicted their activities.

Troop 43 camped outside.

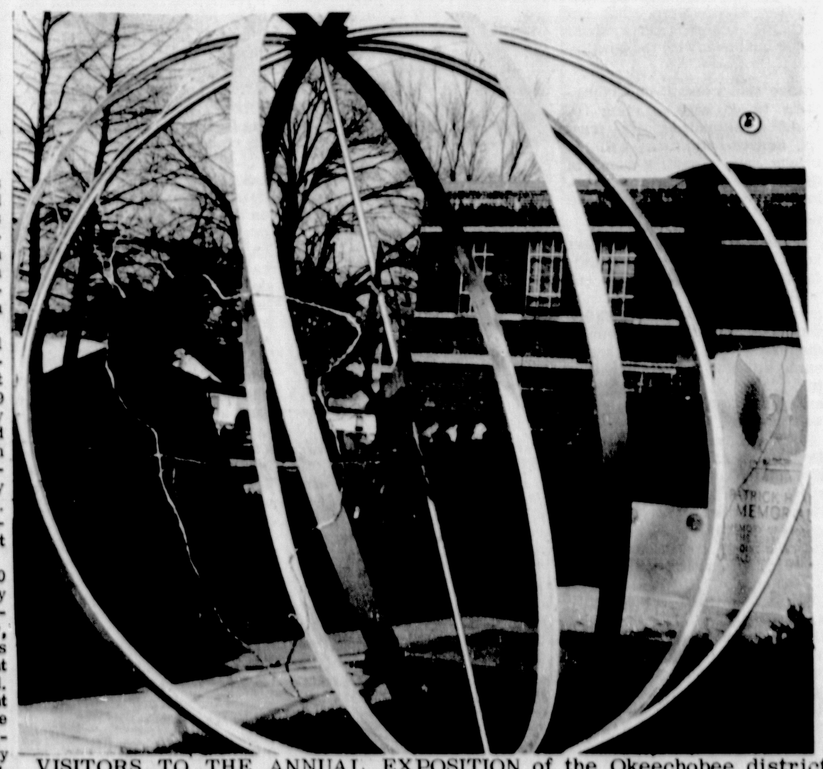
Scout troops were from Charleston, East Praire, New Madrid, Oran, Morehouse, Bertrand and Sikeston, with eight Explorer posts from Sikeston, and Cub Packs from Blodgett, Morley, Bertrand, Vanduser, New Madrid, Morehouse, Matthews and Sikeston.

In charge of the event were Eddie Schrader, scout executive, Don Agnew, council chairman; Bill Pinnell, general chairman; Jim Green, district activities; Dale Beaird, printed program, and publicity; Bob Bozell, tickets; Richard Fussell, program; John Harper, concessions; Jack Conyers, pinewood derby; Rev. Lindy Cannon, space derby; Bill Munger, swimming pool director; Glenn Keller, awards chairman and Jerry Griffin, participation chairman.



VISITORS TO THE ANNUAL EXPOSITION of the Okeechobee district of the Boy Scouts knew on approach they were going to view a World of Good Turns. The global nature of the show was symbolized by this unisphere on the armory lawn.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

IRONY: TAXES ARE BAD; SPENDING IS GOOD

Government spending is popular today, despite the doubts its excesses raise in the minds of many Americans. The reason is simple, if not very creditable: too many Americans are perfectly willing to accept federal money.

But the money government spends has to come from somewhere, and that somewhere is the American taxpayer. The very same people who love to accept federal money often complain when they feel the bite of taxes. Taxes are just as unpopular as spending is popular. Ironic, isn't it?

In the past, constuctive Americans arguing for sound fiscal policies have warned about deficit spending and its dangers. Deficit spending is borrowing against the future, with additional interest payments that have to be met now from taxes. Deficits are important and certainly deserve careful examination; only a small part of our total government spending - just a bit over 5 per cent in the federal administrative budget - is borrowed money. The great bulk of federal spending is still paid for by taxes here and now and we ought to have a very clear idea of how this taxing is done and what it really means.

If we want to understand, we must rid ourselves of the nation created by newspapers that all spending is summed up in the President's annual budget request to Congress. This is far from the fact.

First of all, the administrative budget does not include any of numerous special services provided by special taxes, the best example being social security. When this additional federal spending is added to the federal administrative budget, the total figure rises from just below $100 billion to well above $125 billion.

We must remember that the federal government is not the only government we have in our country. We also have to support state and local governments, whose spending has been growing in recent years. Unlike the federal government, most state and local government spending is sharply limited by local law: as more and more special services, in addition to the basic government service of preserving law and order, are offered by state and local governments, new taxes must be raised to pay for them. Perhaps these taxes belong in a different bookkeeping category than those paid to the federal government for federal services; yet, they are all paid by the same man, the taxpayer. It is his money and his money alone which can support, through taxes, all three levels of government: local, state and federal.

The true measure of the cost of government - the total amount of spending that must be paid for in taxes, with a bit of borrowing on the side - is the cost of local, state and federal governments added together.

This is especially important to understand when we hear so much talk about "tax cuts." To cut one kind of taxes while increasing another kind does not lighten the load on the taxpayer; it only shifts it around.

Last year, a federal income tax cut was enacted by Congress with tremendous fanfare. For the time being, many taxpayers thought they had more money to spend; but at the time, Congress had increased the social security payroll tax. There is even now a move for eight increases in SS taxes over the next 21 years to pay for hospital care for the elderly.

Aside from the merit or lack of merit of any of these plans, it was a simple fact that most if not all of the money added to the take-home pay of the ordinary American by the income tax cut would soon be taken away again by increases in the social security tax.

This becomes even clearer when the cost of state and local governments is brought into the picture. According to estimates by the Tax Foundation, state spending is now rising at the average rate of 8 per cent a year.

Increasingly, states are resorting to the device pioneered by the federal government - the withholding of several kinds of taxes from paychecks. Year by year, the column of various sums taken out of the paycheck first by the federal government then by the state government grows longer. Undoubtedly, this cuts down on evasion of taxes, which can never be morally justified in a country where any Freedom remains. Yet, the trend is there and ought to be clearly recognized. Otherwise, people might assume that all the talk about "tax cuts" at the federal level really means they can get more government spending and services for less money - a very attractive version of having your cake and eating it too.

Now, what about deficits? Many people assume that the whole argument over deficit spending by government is whether the federal government ought to be in debt. The plain fact is, due to wars and defense needs, the national debt is more than $300 billion, and such a vast sum of money can hardly be repaid in the near future. The issue is whether we will continue to go deeper in debt.

Here again, we make a mistake if we view this simply as a "moral issue"; i.e., that we ought not to be in debt so much and certainly ought not to get in deeper. As long as our credit as a nation is good, making a moral issue of the national debt just will not appeal to many people. Among some circles, this may be a good arguement against deficit spending. With most, it does not carry much weight.

The point which ought to be stressed is that for each additional dollar the federal government goes into debt, the taxpayer here and now will have to pay several cents in interest. This is not just a burden we push off onto our children or grandchildren, as so many have said. It is an extra burden on us right now. Money borrowed must not only be paid back; it must be paid for. Already, interest on the national debt is the second largest item in the federal budget, trailing only defense spending in size. As we go deeper in dept by $5 billion to $10 billion each year, the interest that has to be paid on the total debt each year also increases. This payment of interest is a burden on the taxpayer which so-called "economies" cannot lighten. It is a rising charge and a burden which will increase indefinitely with greater deficits, unless the size of the national debt is reduced.

In promoting a broader understanding of taxation, it is also important to show that the total tax burden is not measured by all the taxes one pays directly to government: when every income, payroll, sales and property tax and every special fee paid has been added up, there still remains indirect and hidden taxation that the taxpayer shells out for goods he buys.

When taxes of any kind are levied on the manufacture and sale of goods, those taxes become part of the cost of manufacture and sale and, therefore, raise the price of goods. The ordinary citizen may never have heard of many of the taxes levied on the makers and sellers of goods, but in the end he pays a large part of those taxes himself through higher prices on these goods.

From this example, it is easy to see that in the long run a tax on one is a tax on all. It is tragic that taxes have so long been the object of pulling and hauling by special interest groups. Any gains or advantages by special interest groups are temporary. The total tax burden is in the end shared in many different ways by all.

However we may amuse ourselves with myths of "free federal money," every cent any government spends in this country must come from taxes, or from debasement of the currency through inflation which has been called "the cruelest tax of all." Those taxes must come from earners and producers, restricting the rewards of their earning and production. Whether the benefits provided are worth the cost is a question every American must answer for himself.

A MEDICAL MILESTONE

The United States will pass another medical milestone this spring when medical school graduations push the nation's population of physicians over the 300,000 mark. The entry of the 300,000th doctor of medicine in the records of the American Medical Association will be an event of special significance. In a nation accustomed to dramatic progress in the science of medicine, too little recognition has been given the medical profession for its quiet, persistent efforts to increase the number of physicians available to bring the benefits of modern medicine to the American people.

Too often, uninformed or misinformed critics of the profession have accused the American Medical Association of limiting the supply of physicians to keep competition down and fees up. On the contrary, the AMA and the state and local medical societies have done more than any other organization, public or private, to increase the number of doctors. The physician population has been increasing faster than the general population for several years and is expected to continue this trend.

Medical school construction has been booming. The U.S. now has 88 medical schools -- 11 more than existed at the end of World War II. In the next five years, 13 more will open. At least six and possibly a dozen others will be built or under construction by 1975. Medical school enrollments and graduations are at record levels.

The American Medical Association particularly has long been engaged in extensive programs to attract more talented students to careers in medicine, to assist medical students, interns and residents to finance their education and training, to help in the development of new medical schools, and to maintain high standards of medical education. These constructive programs have a twofold objective: To increase the number of doctors to meet the demands of a growing population and to assure that the doctors who serve you have the best possible education and training.

A colonel in the Foreign Legion, assuming command of a desert outpost, spied a camel tied up behind the enlsted men's quarters and asked his first lieutenant to explain its presence there. The lieutenant replied that the men, being without female companionship required satisfaction, and the camel was used for that purpose. The colonel, being an understanding man, agreed that the camel could remain.

Several weeks later, the colonel himself felt a passionate urge welling up inside him and ordered the camel brought to his room. When the colonel arrived, the colonel immediately set upon her with vigor. Having achieved satisfaction, the colonel turned around and discovered, with embarrassment, that the lieutenant was still standing in the doorway.

"Well," the colonel said, breaking the silence after a moment, "is that the way the men usually do it?"

"Not exactly, sir," the lieutenant replied, "The men ordinarily use her to take them into town."

THERE is false order and there is real order. Because a man's desk is clean it is not a sure sign that his affairs are in order.

I like to see unfinished work on top of a man's desk where it will be a reminder to him that he ought not to play golf this afternoon. Efficiency in many offices could be improved if the furniture consisted of drawerless tables and large waste-baskets. Only records of completed transactions, should be filed out of sight. JURIES ARE JUSTIFIABLE

Which is fairer: a jury trial or a trial by a judge?

Jury supporters state in the Catholic Digest that there is no evidence that jury decisions are less fair than judicial ones. In a recent comparison of 2,000 jury and nonjury trials in Michigan, it was concluded that the difference in results were insubstantial. In a study made in Chicago, judges agreed in 95% of the cases that the jury's conclusion was justifiable.

It is easy to suppose that we could have democracy without the jury system. All cases could be decided by a panel of judges or by a group of professional arbitrators. It would be cheaper and less cumbersome. But let us hope that this never happens! Simplicity is worth while when it can be achieved without sacrifice of principle. But the day the jury system is replaced with some easy alternative is the day that democracy will die.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - As the Senate Ethics Committee ground its hearings toward a stop last week, it was apparent that its investigative staff had done a meticulous job of probing Sen. Dodd's finances, but that the senators themselves either had forgotten or ignored some of the most important points in the strange career of Tom Dodd.

These include his backdoor law practice, payroll padding, payroll maneuvering, favors to gift-bearing lobbyists, accepting free automobiles and airplane travel from those doing business with the government.

Since this column had something to do with starting the Dodd investigation, we trust the Senate committee will not resent our reporting some of the facts which they overlooked. Here are a few of them:

Repairs on Dodd's summer home - Michael O'Hare, Dodd's former office manager and bookkeeper, was prepared to testify that more than $50,000 was taken out of the testimonial dinner funds to renovate Dodd's summer home in North Stonington, Conn. He was not cross-examined. The whole thing was ignored.

Advice on tax-free gifts - Sen. Dodd has claimed that he had the advice of his lawyers to treat contributions to testimonial dinners as tax-free gifts. However, sworn testimony before the Senate committee showed that Dodd's tax accountant in Hartford, David Nichols, warned him otherwise. Nichols learned that Dodd has transferred $6,000 to his personal account from funds raised at the "D.C. reception for Dodd" and warned that the $6,000 loan that this money was taxable, while at the same time claiming that other identical contributions were not taxable.

Loans & Jobs - Dodd persuaded the White House to appoint the son of Lazarus Hayman in Hartford as assistant U.S. attorney in Connecticut. Simultaneously Dodd borrowed first $7,500 from Hayman; later $6,000 from him to satisfy a total income tax payment of $13,500.

The Senate committee listened to testimony regarding Dodd's borrowing to pay this $13,500 but never really delved into whether Dodd paid back the money and its possible connection with the U.S. attorneyship which Dodd secured for the son of his benefactor.

Backdoor Law Practice - There's a criminal statute forbidding a Senator from taking law fees in return for practice before Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall in the case of a government park and a high rise apartment which Dodd's client Tom Frouge wanted to build in San Francisco obstructing the view of the Golden Gate.

"I am sure you will understand," he wrote his law associates on July 2, 1961, "when I tell you that I have made a large contribution to the firm, and actually my return has been small. It should be much larger, and this is something I will have to talk about very soon.

"I am sure you know as well as I do that there is a considerable amount of business that goes into the office because of me...

"Many men who are in public life receive a steady income from their law practices because of the value of the association."

Letter to LBJ - An array of Dodd witnesses, obviously carefully coached, swore to the Senate committee that money raised from testimonial dinners was for the purpose of paying Dodd's personal expenses, not campaign expenses. The Senate committee, however, knew of one clinching letter written by Dodd to none less than Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president, Aug. 5, 1963, thanking him for agreeing to speak at Dodd day in Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign," Dodd wrote to Johnson.

The Senate committee could have subpoenaed the letter from Dodd's files or requested it from the White House. It did neither.

Payroll Padding - Mrs. Beverly Curry of Hartford has been on the Senator's payroll for six years for $4,500 annually. Mrs. Curry is supposed to be attached to the Hartford office but has never worked there. But her husband is a big Connecticut politician whose support Dodd needs.

The son of Mrs. Florence Lowe, Washington representative of Metromedia, was put on the juvenile delinquency subcommittee payroll, though he had no experience in the intricate problem of the causes of delinquency. Metromedia was under investigation for its emphasis on TV crime at the time.

Edward Sullivan, who draws $15,000 a year as a member of Dodd's staff, lives in Hartford and does no real work for Dodd except money-raising. Jim Gartland, who does come into the Dodd office, is chiefly a chair-warmer. These absorb much of the senator's staff salary allotment.

Diverting Personnel - To make up for chair-warmers, Dodd diverts trained personnel to his office from the Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee. This committee, dealing with a vital subject, is supposed to have a staff of 21; though only eight have been working on committee business. At one time during the investigation of televised crime by NBC, Committee Counsel Carl Perrian threatened to resign because he was investigating one of the biggest corporations in television without enough personnel to do it.

CONTROL OF EDUCATION

Control of education in our country continues to shift from the local to the national level. For many years after our Republic was established, education remained under the jurisdiction of the States, counties, and local school districts. In recent years, however, the real authority has resided in Washington. This has come about gradually, but surely, through the enactment of far-reaching and all-encompassing aid-to-education bills.

Paradoxically, the one legislation enactment that has given the most power and authority to bureaucrats is not in any of the various aid-to-education bills. Rather, it is contained in the so-called Civil Rights Act of 1964. Found in Title VI of that Act, it is the section which authorizes withholding of funds under all grant-in-aid programs until the local administractors comply with the demands laid down in Washington.

This provision has become the silent partner to all federal grant-in-aid programs but thus far, it has been applied primarily in the field of education.

The Office of Education and the social planners have used the authority given them through Title VI to assume dictatorial powers not even envisioned by Congress when the Act was passed. They have done this by issuing "guidelines" apparently to assist the local school districts in formulating plans of compliance.

Compliance with these so-called "guidelines" is being required as though they had the force and effect of law, which they do not. These "guidelines" are simply extra-legal means of requiring that which the law itself does not require. HLH.

Rockefeller Pledges He'll Wipe Out All Non - Union Labor on Gigantic Projects.

New York: -- There were two of us dining with the governor in one of the Rockefeller suites some time ago when a motorcycle state trooper arrived from the capital with a piece of legislation which needed signing before midnight.

Mine was the only fountain pen -- and since the new law called for the expenditure of $750 million, I was tempted to hurl my quill out the window and dam the gold flow. But I yielded and came away minus one pen and with the impression that Nelson Rockefeller always thinks giant size.

It is his master strategy on all fronts. The other day, for example, he invited 40 leaders of AFL-CIO craft unions to his office. They gathered at 11 a.m. on March 10. He outlined a $5- to $6 - billion transportation-highway - airport construction program.

Then he made an unprecedented promise:

He guaranteed that only union labor would be hired on this massive, sprawling 5 - year building project.

No other public official ever has made such a pledge in advance. Certainly no Republican.

Gov. Rockefeller will have to cope with many complicated laws involving low bidding under the public work laws.

For the assembled labor leaders, some of them the nation's toughest bargainers, the pledge was a fantastic prize. Scores of thousands of well - paying jobs are involved.

Over $1 billion will be spent on a new interwoven transportation system linking several states. Another $1 billion will go for road construction. About $250 million would be earmarked for small airports to handle the increasing fleets of private and company planes.

For an hour and a half in the crowded room at 22 W. 55 Street, his Manhattan office complex, the governor outlined the projects. He's a great one for slides.

He talked quietly, firmly and with the confidence that comes from the knowledge that those labor leaders were-and are-his close friends and political allies.

In turn he asked for their support in the state legislature and in the campaign for approval of the projects by the voters in the fall election. After that he disclosed that another $3 billion would come from the federal government and many county and municipal coffers.

Then he asked for a no - strike pledge.

This, too, was unprecedented on such vast projects. The men before him that forenoon speak for 500,000 skilled craftsmen and teamsters. They're not all strike-happy. But many of their members hit the bricks over grievances faster than showers in April.

Gov. Rockefeller was warmly received. The spokesmen said they'd have to think it over.

Some of them did during the week. In private conversations with the group's high command he got the pledge.

There is no doubt the governor stuck his neck way out. There are mighty few such heavy projects -- even at the moon ports bases -- which have been built entirely with union labor. Cape Kennedy has been struck many times by brother unions protesting the retention of low bidder, non - union construction firms there.

However, Gov. Rockefeller made the pledge of total unionized labor for many reasons.

First, he believes in the policy. And it would be sophomoric to think that he is not pleased thus to tie himself closer to the powerful New York labor movement as the 1968 election thunders on us. Few insiders here doubt he is making a massive drive for the G.O.P. presidential nomination.

His strategists say that he is the only Republican contender who has powerful union support and can cut into Mr. Johnson's labor vote.

Of course, Mr. Rockefeller knows that the bulk of his friends here will officially endorse Lyndon Johnson for re - election. But that does not shake Mr. Rockefeller. He's a polished sophisticate now.

He knows there are endorsements and endorsements. He knows that big unions can sit on their hands as well as put them into their pockets. He knows that big unions can go through the motions, can eye - dropper out money instead of pouring it on; the supplying of membership cards, mailing lists, and manpower can be delayed until they are virtually useless.

Some of those around him believe that this is what the New York unions would do to Mr. Johnson's campaign if Mr. Rockefeller were nominated.

His friends would "desert" Rockefeller in name only. He believes the intrastructure of the labor movement here and in many parts of California -- and at points in between -- are closer to him than to Lyndon Johnson.

So he is thinking big and moving daringly. If he gets the nomination, he will at least have run for President. If not he'll not run again for any office. The rumor is he has enough to make ends meet

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

IRONY: TAXES ARE BAD; SPENDING IS GOOD

Government spending is popular today, despite the doubts its excesses raise in the minds of many Americans. The reason is simple, if not very creditable: too many Americans are perfectly willing to accept federal money.

But the money government spends has to come from somewhere, and that somewhere is the American taxpayer. The very same people who love to accept federal money often complain when they feel the bite of taxes. Taxes are just as unpopular as spending is popular. Ironic, isn't it?

In the past, constuctive Americans arguing for sound fiscal policies have warned about deficit spending and its dangers. Deficit spending is borrowing against the future, with additional interest payments that have to be met now from taxes. Deficits are important and certainly deserve careful examination; only a small part of our total government spending - just a bit over 5 per cent in the federal administrative budget - is borrowed money. The great bulk of federal spending is still paid for by taxes here and now and we ought to have a very clear idea of how this taxing is done and what it really means.

If we want to understand, we must rid ourselves of the nation created by newspapers that all spending is summed up in the President's annual budget request to Congress. This is far from the fact.

First of all, the administrative budget does not include any of numerous special services provided by special taxes, the best example being social security. When this additional federal spending is added to the federal administrative budget, the total figure rises from just below $100 billion to well above $125 billion.

We must remember that the federal government is not the only government we have in our country. We also have to support state and local governments, whose spending has been growing in recent years. Unlike the federal government, most state and local government spending is sharply limited by local law: as more and more special services, in addition to the basic government service of preserving law and order, are offered by state and local governments, new taxes must be raised to pay for them. Perhaps these taxes belong in a different bookkeeping category than those paid to the federal government for federal services; yet, they are all paid by the same man, the taxpayer. It is his money and his money alone which can support, through taxes, all three levels of government: local, state and federal.

The true measure of the cost of government - the total amount of spending that must be paid for in taxes, with a bit of borrowing on the side - is the cost of local, state and federal governments added together.

This is especially important to understand when we hear so much talk about "tax cuts." To cut one kind of taxes while increasing another kind does not lighten the load on the taxpayer; it only shifts it around.

Last year, a federal income tax cut was enacted by Congress with tremendous fanfare. For the time being, many taxpayers thought they had more money to spend; but at the time, Congress had increased the social security payroll tax. There is even now a move for eight increases in SS taxes over the next 21 years to pay for hospital care for the elderly.

Aside from the merit or lack of merit of any of these plans, it was a simple fact that most if not all of the money added to the take-home pay of the ordinary American by the income tax cut would soon be taken away again by increases in the social security tax.

This becomes even clearer when the cost of state and local governments is brought into the picture. According to estimates by the Tax Foundation, state spending is now rising at the average rate of 8 per cent a year.

Increasingly, states are resorting to the device pioneered by the federal government - the withholding of several kinds of taxes from paychecks. Year by year, the column of various sums taken out of the paycheck first by the federal government then by the state government grows longer. Undoubtedly, this cuts down on evasion of taxes, which can never be morally justified in a country where any Freedom remains. Yet, the trend is there and ought to be clearly recognized. Otherwise, people might assume that all the talk about "tax cuts" at the federal level really means they can get more government spending and services for less money - a very attractive version of having your cake and eating it too.

Now, what about deficits? Many people assume that the whole argument over deficit spending by government is whether the federal government ought to be in debt. The plain fact is, due to wars and defense needs, the national debt is more than $300 billion, and such a vast sum of money can hardly be repaid in the near future. The issue is whether we will continue to go deeper in debt.

Here again, we make a mistake if we view this simply as a "moral issue"; i.e., that we ought not to be in debt so much and certainly ought not to get in deeper. As long as our credit as a nation is good, making a moral issue of the national debt just will not appeal to many people. Among some circles, this may be a good arguement against deficit spending. With most, it does not carry much weight.

The point which ought to be stressed is that for each additional dollar the federal government goes into debt, the taxpayer here and now will have to pay several cents in interest. This is not just a burden we push off onto our children or grandchildren, as so many have said. It is an extra burden on us right now. Money borrowed must not only be paid back; it must be paid for. Already, interest on the national debt is the second largest item in the federal budget, trailing only defense spending in size. As we go deeper in dept by $5 billion to $10 billion each year, the interest that has to be paid on the total debt each year also increases. This payment of interest is a burden on the taxpayer which so-called "economies" cannot lighten. It is a rising charge and a burden which will increase indefinitely with greater deficits, unless the size of the national debt is reduced.

In promoting a broader understanding of taxation, it is also important to show that the total tax burden is not measured by all the taxes one pays directly to government: when every income, payroll, sales and property tax and every special fee paid has been added up, there still remains indirect and hidden taxation that the taxpayer shells out for goods he buys.

When taxes of any kind are levied on the manufacture and sale of goods, those taxes become part of the cost of manufacture and sale and, therefore, raise the price of goods. The ordinary citizen may never have heard of many of the taxes levied on the makers and sellers of goods, but in the end he pays a large part of those taxes himself through higher prices on these goods.

From this example, it is easy to see that in the long run a tax on one is a tax on all. It is tragic that taxes have so long been the object of pulling and hauling by special interest groups. Any gains or advantages by special interest groups are temporary. The total tax burden is in the end shared in many different ways by all.

However we may amuse ourselves with myths of "free federal money," every cent any government spends in this country must come from taxes, or from debasement of the currency through inflation which has been called "the cruelest tax of all." Those taxes must come from earners and producers, restricting the rewards of their earning and production. Whether the benefits provided are worth the cost is a question every American must answer for himself.

A MEDICAL MILESTONE

The United States will pass another medical milestone this spring when medical school graduations push the nation's population of physicians over the 300,000 mark. The entry of the 300,000th doctor of medicine in the records of the American Medical Association will be an event of special significance. In a nation accustomed to dramatic progress in the science of medicine, too little recognition has been given the medical profession for its quiet, persistent efforts to increase the number of physicians available to bring the benefits of modern medicine to the American people.

Too often, uninformed or misinformed critics of the profession have accused the American Medical Association of limiting the supply of physicians to keep competition down and fees up. On the contrary, the AMA and the state and local medical societies have done more than any other organization, public or private, to increase the number of doctors. The physician population has been increasing faster than the general population for several years and is expected to continue this trend.

Medical school construction has been booming. The U.S. now has 88 medical schools -- 11 more than existed at the end of World War II. In the next five years, 13 more will open. At least six and possibly a dozen others will be built or under construction by 1975. Medical school enrollments and graduations are at record levels.

The American Medical Association particularly has long been engaged in extensive programs to attract more talented students to careers in medicine, to assist medical students, interns and residents to finance their education and training, to help in the development of new medical schools, and to maintain high standards of medical education. These constructive programs have a twofold objective: To increase the number of doctors to meet the demands of a growing population and to assure that the doctors who serve you have the best possible education and training.

A colonel in the Foreign Legion, assuming command of a desert outpost, spied a camel tied up behind the enlsted men's quarters and asked his first lieutenant to explain its presence there. The lieutenant replied that the men, being without female companionship required satisfaction, and the camel was used for that purpose. The colonel, being an understanding man, agreed that the camel could remain.

Several weeks later, the colonel himself felt a passionate urge welling up inside him and ordered the camel brought to his room. When the colonel arrived, the colonel immediately set upon her with vigor. Having achieved satisfaction, the colonel turned around and discovered, with embarrassment, that the lieutenant was still standing in the doorway.

"Well," the colonel said, breaking the silence after a moment, "is that the way the men usually do it?"

"Not exactly, sir," the lieutenant replied, "The men ordinarily use her to take them into town."

I like to see unfinished work on top of a man's desk where it will be a reminder to him that he ought not to play golf this afternoon. JURIES ARE JUSTIFIABLE

Which is fairer: a jury trial or a trial by a judge?

Jury supporters state in the Catholic Digest that there is no evidence that jury decisions are less fair than judicial ones. In a recent comparison of 2,000 jury and nonjury trials in Michigan, it was concluded that the difference in results were insubstantial. In a study made in Chicago, judges agreed in 95% of the cases that the jury's conclusion was justifiable.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON - As the Senate Ethics Committee ground its hearings toward a stop last week, it was apparent that its investigative staff had done a meticulous job of probing Sen. Dodd's finances, but that the senators themselves either had forgotten or ignored some of the most important points in the strange career of Tom Dodd.

These include his backdoor law practice, payroll padding, payroll maneuvering, favors to gift-bearing lobbyists, accepting free automobiles and airplane travel from those doing business with the government.

Since this column had something to do with starting the Dodd investigation, we trust the Senate committee will not resent our reporting some of the facts which they overlooked. Here are a few of them:

Repairs on Dodd's summer home - Mchael O'Hare, Dodd's former office manager and bookkeeper, was prepared to testify that more than $50,000 was taken out of the testimonial dinner funds to renovate Dodd's summer home in North Stonington, Conn. He was not cross-examined. The whole thing was ignored.

Advice on tax-free gifts - Sen. Dodd has claimed that he had the advice of his lawyers to treat contributions to testimonial dinners as tax-free gifts. However, sworn testimony before the Senate committee showed that Dodd's tax accountant in Hartford, David Nichols, warned him otherwise. Nichols learned that Dodd has transferred $6,000 to his personal account from funds raised at the "D.C. reception for Dodd" and warned that the $6,000 loan that this money was taxable, while at the same time claiming that other identical contributions were not taxable.

Loans & Jobs - Dodd persuaded the White House to appoint the son of Lazarus Hayman in Hartford as assistant U.S. attorney in Connecticut. Simultaneously Dodd borrowed first $7,500 from Hayman; later $6,000 from him to satisfy a total income tax payment of $13,500.

The Senate committee listened to testimony regarding Dodd's borrowing to pay this $13,500 but never really delved into whether Dodd paid back the money and its possible connection with the U.S. attorneyship which Dodd secured for the son of his benefactor.

Backdoor Law Practice - There's a criminal statute forbidding a Senator from taking law fees in return for practice before Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall in the case of a government park and a high rise apartment which Dodd's client Tom Frouge wanted to build in San Francisco obstructing the view of the Golden Gate.

"I am sure you will understand," he wrote his law associates on July 2, 1961, "when I tell you that I have made a large contribution to the firm, and actually my return has been small. It should be much larger, and this is something I will have to talk about very soon.

"I am sure you know as well as I do that there is a considerable amount of business that goes into the office because of me...

"Many men who are in public life receive a steady income from their law practices because of the value of the association."

Letter to LBJ - An array of Dodd witnesses, obviously carefully coached, swore to the Senate committee that money raised from testimonial dinners was for the purpose of paying Dodd's personal expenses, not campaign expenses. The Senate committee, however, knew of one clinching letter written by Dodd to none less than Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president, Aug. 5, 1963, thanking him for agreeing to speak at Dodd day in Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign," Dodd wrote to Johnson.

The Senate committee could have subpoenaed the letter from Dodd's files or requested it from the White House. It did neither.

Payroll Padding - Mrs. Beverly Curry of Hartford has been on the Senator's payroll for six years for $4,500 annually. Mrs. Curry is supposed to be attached to the Hartford office but has never worked there. But her husband is a big Connecticut politician whose support Dodd needs.

The son of Mrs. Florence Lowe, Washington representative of Metromedia, was put on the juvenile delinquency subcommittee payroll, though he had no experience in the intricate problem of the causes of delinquency. Metromedia was under investigation for its emphasis on TV crime at the time.

Edward Sullivan, who draws $15,000 a year as a member of Dodd's staff, lives in Hartford and does no real work for Dodd except money-raising. Jim Gartland, who does come into the Dodd office, is chiefly a chair-warmer. These absorb much of the senator's staff salary allotment.

Diverting Personnel - To make up for chair-warmers, Dodd diverts trained personnel to his office from the Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee. This committee, dealing with a vital subject, is supposed to have a staff of 21; though only eight have been working on committee business. At one time during the investigation of televised crime by NBC, Committee Counsel Carl Perrian threatened to resign because he was investigating one of the biggest corporations in television without enough personnel to do it.

No other public official ever has made such a pledge in advance. Certainly no Republican.

Gov. Rockefeller will have to cope with many complicated laws involving low bidding under the public work laws.

For the assembled labor leaders, some of them the nation's toughest bargainers, the pledge was a fantastic prize. Scores of thousands of well - paying jobs are involved.

Over $1 billion will be spent on a new interwoven transportation system linking several states. Another $1 billion will go for road construction. About $250 million would be earmarked for small airports to handle the increasing fleets of private and company planes.

For an hour and a half in the crowded room at 22 W. 55 Street, his Manhattan office complex, the governor outlined the projects. He's a great one for slides.

He talked quietly, firmly and with the confidence that comes from the knowledge that those labor leaders were-and are-his close friends and political allies.

In turn he asked for their support in the state legislature and in the campaign for approval of the projects by the voters in the fall election. After that he disclosed that another $3 billion would come from the federal government and many county and municipal coffers.

Then he asked for a no - strike pledge.

This, too, was unprecedented on such vast projects. The men before him that forenoon speak for 500,000 skilled craftsmen and teamsters. They're not all strike-happy. But many of their members hit the bricks over grievances faster than showers in April.

Gov. Rockefeller was warmly received. The spokesmen said they'd have to think it over.

Some of them did during the week. In private conversations with the group's high command he got the pledge.

There is no doubt the governor stuck his neck way out. There are mighty few such heavy projects -- even at the moon ports bases -- which have been built entirely with union labor. Cape Kennedy has been struck many times by brother unions protesting the retention of low bidder, non - union construction firms there.

However, Gov. Rockefeller made the pledge of total unionized labor for many reasons.

First, he believes in the policy. And it would be sophomoric to think that he is not pleased thus to tie himself closer to the powerful New York labor movement as the 1968 election thunders on us. Few insiders here doubt he is making a massive drive for the G.O.P. presidential nomination.

His strategists say that he is the only Republican contender who has powerful union support and can cut into Mr. Johnson's labor vote.

Of course, Mr. Rockefeller knows that the bulk of his friends here will officially endorse Lyndon Johnson for re - election. But that does not shake Mr. Rockefeller. He's a polished sophisticate now.

He knows there are endorsements and endorsements. He knows that big unions can sit on their hands as well as put them into their pockets. He knows that big unions can go through the motions, can eye - dropper out money instead of pouring it on; the supplying of membership cards, mailing lists, and manpower can be delayed until they are virtually useless.

Some of those around him believe that this is what the New York unions would do to Mr. Johnson's campaign if Mr. Rockefeller were nominated.

His friends would "desert" Rockefeller in name only. He believes the intrastructure of the labor movement here and in many parts of California -- and at points in between -- are closer to him than to Lyndon Johnson.

So he is thinking big and moving daringly. If he gets the nomination, he will at least have run for President. If not, he'll not run again for any office. The rumor is he has enough to make ends meet

SOLVING A FEW LAUNDRY PROBLEMS

Automatic washers will do a good job of getting clothes clean if proper laundering procedures are followed. A comparison of your procedures against the following may isolate the problem and provide the solution.

Graying of fabrics may be caused from overloading your laundry equipment - water not hot enough, not enough detergent in washing or soaking, or too long a wash or soak time.

When loading your washer allow enough room for items to circulate freely during agitation. About two-thirds full is enough, and don't pack the clothes in.

Water should reach your washer at 140 degrees to 160 degrees. If the water heater is far from the washer, turn the thermostat on the heater higher to compensate for the distance, and be sure that your water heater is large enough to accommodate all of the family's hot water needs.

Soil released from fabric in soaking will be redeposited when you do not use a detergent, or not enough detergent. Soak the load of clothes with enough detergent for no more than 15 minutes.

The strength of detergent can be used up if the wash time is too long and a redeposit of the soil onto clothes will occur. Wash only the recommended length of time for each type of load.

Not enough detergent is the chief cause of graying. Use the full amount recommended for your particular laundry equipment or by the detergent manufacturer.

Yellowing of fabrics may be caused by incomplete removal of oily based soils, certain bleaches, water impurities, or age.

To remove oil based soil, pretreat area with a heavy solution of laundry detergent. Wash fabric in hot water, using sufficient detergent and a bleach suitable to the fabric. The action of chlorine bleach on certain resin-treated cottons and rayons may cause them to yellow. Treat with color remover before ironing. The heat and retained chlorine will form an acid that will form fabric damage. Use oxygen-based bleach for future bleaching.

To remove yellowing caused by iron in the water, use a solution of oxalic acid (one tablespoon in one cup of warm water) or use a commercial rust remover. Precaution must be used with the oxalic acid solution. Use rubber gloves to prevent irritation to the skin and do not use the solution on nylon.

Yellowing caused by age can be treated with a detergent that contains a brightener, and is especially good on polyesters. For age yellowed nylons use a color remover or a special nylon whitener.

Excessive lint can be caused by overloading the laundry equipment and improper sorting. Load the wash so the clothes are allowed to move freely in the wash water. The water action will flush lint from the fabric surfaces.

When items giving up lint, towels, or cotton fabrics, are laundered together with items that naturally attract lint (synthetic fabrics), the latter will become unsightly from lint.

Boston Options Morehead; Cards Beat Chicago

Associated Press Sports Writer

The pitchers are going further in the spring training exhibitions now, but few of them are going as far as Dave Morehead.

Morehead, a Boston right-hander who has won only one game since he threw a no-hitter against the Cleveland Indians Sept. 16, 1965, has been optioned to Toronto of the International League.

He was bothered with arm trouble most of last season and had a 1-2 record. He was bombed for 10 runs in 2 1-3 innings by the New York Mets last Thursday in his only exhibition appearance this season.

"We had to send him where he can get a chance to pitch," Boston Manager Dick Williams said Sunday in Winter Haven, Fla. "When he shows us that he's okay, we'll call him back."

"Tony should be swinging a bat in a week and playing in two weeks," Red Sox physician Dr. Thomas Tierney said after examining Conigliaro in Boston.

Conigliaro suffered a hairline fracture of the shoulder when hit by a pitch in batting practice Saturday. He was flown to Boston for an examination, and returned to the team Sunday.

He didn't make it back in time for the game, but the Red Sox still pulled out a 7-6 decision over Detroit.

Conigliaro's replacement, George Thomas, had three of the Red Sox' 15 hits and drove in three runs. Boston rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to win it, with Bob Tillman's bases-loaded squeeze bunt capping it.

Fritz Peterson and Thad Tillotson combined to throw a three-hitter for the Yankees. Peterson allowed only a single in six innings. A walk, Mickey Mantle's single and a force-out provided the only run.

A three-run burst in the sixth staked the Cardinals to their victory over the White Sox, St. Louis' third straight triumph.

Sonny Jackson's 10th - inning single drove in Ron Brand for the winning run in Houston's decision over the Pirates.

Sammy Ellis of the Reds held the Braves to one hit in their game, which was cut to six innings by a cold rain. The Braves lost catcher Joe Torre and backup catcher Gene Oliver. Torre suffered a split finger on his right hand and Oliver cracked a bone in his throwing hand.

Consecutive homers by Wes Parker and Jeff Torborg snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth and sent the Dodgers to their victory over the Orioles. Dave Johnson had a three-run homer for the loser.

Chris Short, Ruben Gomez and Pedro Ramos combined for a four-hit shutout for the Phillies, Short allowing three hits in six innings.

Cleveland scored five runs in a wild first inning and coasted in against the Angels.

The Giants won their third straight, getting four runs in the first inning and 15 hits in all off Cub pitching.

A walk, a balk and Dick Green's run scoring single in the 10th won it for the A's in Venezuela. Kansas City has won three of four from the Twins in their South American trip.

Kelly, Pyles Lead Gray Ridge Attack

VANDUSER--Allan Kelly and David Pyles scored 24 points each in leading the Gray Ridge basketball team to the championship of the men's invitational basketball tournament Saturday night. Morehouse was defeated 119-92. Vanduser won the consolation title by beating Matthews 84-79.

An all out team effort by the Gray Ridge squad in the scoring, rebounding and defensive departments gave the team its win.

Team captain and leading rebounder, Larry King, scored 19 points in his team's victory. Joe Jones added 13, Bob Kelly 11 and Henderson and Lane 10 each, Jerry Kelly eight.

Morehouse jumped to a 22-21 first period lead but a 36-point second period by the victors gave them a 57-45 lead at intermission. Gray Ridge scored 30 or more points in the final three periods.

Dale Sexton poured through 37 points to lead the Morehouse scoring and got 24-point backing from teammate Don Savage but to no avail. They could not overcome the talented Gray Ridge quintet.

Despite a 37-point production by Morehouse's Dick Schuerenberg, the home town team won its third game in the tournament and the consolation title.

Moberly Wins Tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — The Moberly Greyhounds of Missouri won an unprecedented fourth national junior college basketball championship Saturday night and drew an enthusiastic response from their followers.

The Greyhounds were nearly two hours late getting home Sunday because of bad weather. However, despite a dreary drizzle and near-freezing temperature, Moberly citizens gave them a parade through town behind the high school band. There was a program of greetings at the city auditorium, packed by nearly 2,000 persons.

Powell, Wyo., placed fourth by defeating Burlington, Iowa, 102-85. Fifth place went to Vincennes, Ind., downing Dodge City 73-64. Ranger finished seventh and Dodge City eighth.

Thoenen was named the tourney's most valuable player. He and teammate Stepter were named on the 10-man tournament all-star squad.

NIT Title To Salukis

By DICK COUCH

southern Illinois, the nation's No. 1 college division team, capped an impressive bid for big-time recognition by capturing the National Invitation Tournament title at New York with a 71-56 triumph over Marquette. The victory was the 19th in a row for the Salukis, who topped nine major opponents.

In the NIT consolation game, Rutgers' Bob Lloyd tossed in 44 points for a four-game total of 129, breaking the tournament record of 124 set by Maurice Stokes of St. Francis, Pa., 12 years ago, as the Scarlet Knights raced past Marshall, W.Va., 93-76.

Guy Lewis still thinks UCLA is headed for a fall, but the Houston basketball coach isn't sure his Cougars are mean enough to push the Bruins off their summit perch.

"We lack the killer instinct, and I don't know if that will be fatal against UCLA or not," Lewis said Sunday as the Cougars began preparing for their NCAA tournament date with the unbeaten, top-ranked Bruins Friday night.

Lewis, who predicted UCLA "will get beat" before his club earned the task of confronting the Bruins and 7-foot-1 Lew Alcindor, could promise only one thing Sunday: Houston won't settle for a standoff.

"I haven't decided how we'll play them," he said, "but we definitely won't try any control game on them. We don't even practice a delay. We think we have enough talent to get the ball in the hole against any team."

Elvin (Big E) Hayes heads Houston's talent parade and Lewis hopes the 6-foot-8 pivotman, whose 31 points triggered the Cougars' 83-75 victory over Southern Methodist in last Saturday night's NCAA Midwest regional final, will prove the Big Equalizer against UCLA prodigy Alcindor.

Big Lew poured in 38 points as the Bruins ousted University of Pacific 80-64 in the Far West regional for their 28th straight victory.

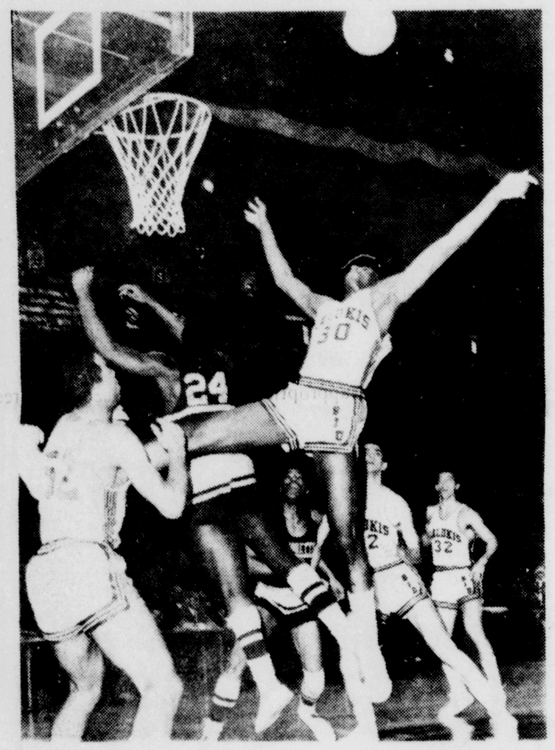
"Hayes is even greater this season because he has confidence in his shooting, from anywhere on the court," Lewis said. "He really took charge in the closing minutes against SMU."

The Houston All-America scored 20 points in the second half, most of them from outside, to offset a furious SMU rally that wiped out a 14-point deficit.

The Mustangs tied the score 72-72 with a 15-3 burst, but Hayes' basket with 1:57 remaining sent Houston ahead 76-73 and the nationally seventh-ranked Cougars hung on for their 24th victory in 27 starts.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina, 26-4, gained the semifinals by whipping No. 9 Boston College 96-80 behind Bob Lewis' 31 points in the East regional and unranked Dayton, 24-5, outlasted Virginia Tech in overtime 71-66 for the Mid East crown.

Consolation winners at the four NCAA regional playoffs were Princeton, which downed St. John's, N.Y., 78-58; Indiana, which beat Tennessee 51-44; Kansas, which got past disappointing Louisville 70-68, and Texas Western, which nipped Wyoming 69-67.



CLARENCE SMITH (#30) of So. Illinois and Marquette's George Thompson (#24) are airborne in different directions in a battle for the ball during the NIT finals held in New York Sat. afternoon. Looking on is Walt Frazier (#52) of So. Ill. The Salukis defeated the Warriors, 71-56, to win the tournament.

Moberly Wins Tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — The Moberly Greyhounds of Missouri won an unprecedented fourth national junior college basketball championship Saturday night and drew an enthusiastic response from their followers.

The Greyhounds were nearly two hours late getting home Sunday because of bad weather. However, despite a dreary drizzle and near-freezing temperature, Moberly citizens gave them a parade through town behind the high school band. There was a program of greetings at the city auditorium, packed by nearly 2,000 persons.

Powell, Wyo., placed fourth by defeating Burlington, Iowa, 102-85. Fifth place went to Vincennes, Ind., downing Dodge City 73-64. Ranger finished seventh and Dodge City eighth.

Thoenen was named the tourney's most valuable player. He and teammate Stepter were named on the 10-man tournament all-star squad.

NIT Title To Salukis

By DICK COUCH

southern Illinois, the nation's No. 1 college division team, capped an impressive bid for big-time recognition by capturing the National Invitation Tournament title at New York with a 71-56 triumph over Marquette. The victory was the 19th in a row for the Salukis, who topped nine major opponents.

In the NIT consolation game, Rutgers' Bob Lloyd tossed in 44 points for a four-game total of 129, breaking the tournament record of 124 set by Maurice Stokes of St. Francis, Pa., 12 years ago, as the Scarlet Knights raced past Marshall, W.Va., 93-76.

Guy Lewis still thinks UCLA is headed for a fall, but the Houston basketball coach isn't sure his Cougars are mean enough to push the Bruins off their summit perch.

"We lack the killer instinct, and I don't know if that will be fatal against UCLA or not," Lewis said Sunday as the Cougars began preparing for their NCAA tournament date with the unbeaten, top-ranked Bruins Friday night.

Lewis, who predicted UCLA "will get beat" before his club earned the task of confronting the Bruins and 7-foot-1 Lew Alcindor, could promise only one thing Sunday: Houston won't settle for a standoff.

"I haven't decided how we'll play them," he said, "but we definitely won't try any control game on them. We don't even practice a delay. We think we have enough talent to get the ball in the hole against any team."

Elvin (Big E) Hayes heads Houston's talent parade and Lewis hopes the 6-foot-8 pivotman, whose 31 points triggered the Cougars' 83-75 victory over Southern Methodist in last Saturday night's NCAA Midwest regional final, will prove the Big Equalizer against UCLA prodigy Alcindor.

Big Lew poured in 38 points as the Bruins ousted University of Pacific 80-64 in the Far West regional for their 28th straight victory.

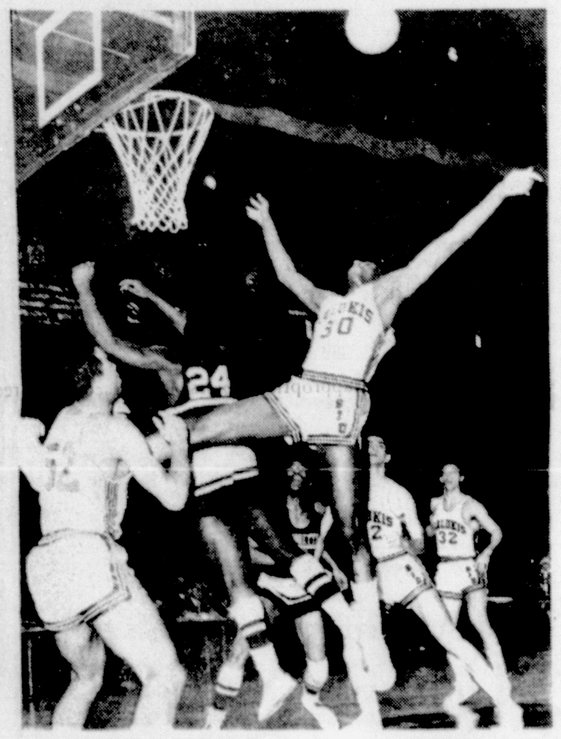
"Hayes is even greater this season because he has confidence in his shooting, from anywhere on the court," Lewis said. "He really took charge in the closing minutes against SMU."

The Houston All-America scored 20 points in the second half, most of them from outside, to offset a furious SMU rally that wiped out a 14-point deficit.

The Mustangs tied the score 72-72 with a 15-3 burst, but Hayes' basket with 1:57 remaining sent Houston ahead 76-73 and the nationally seventh-ranked Cougars hung on for their 24th victory in 27 starts.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina, 26-4, gained the semifinals by whipping No. 9 Boston College 96-80 behind Bob Lewis' 31 points in the East regional and unranked Dayton, 24-5, outlasted Virginia Tech in overtime 71-66 for the Mid East crown.

Consolation winners at the four NCAA regional playoffs were Princeton, which downed St. John's, N.Y., 78-58; Indiana, which beat Tennessee 51-44; Kansas, which got past disappointing Louisville 70 - 68, and Texas Western, which nipped Wyoming 69-67.



CLARENCE SMITH (#30) of So. Illinois and Marquette's George Thompson (#24) are airborne in different directions in a battle for the ball during the NIT finals held in New York Sat. afternoon. Looking on is Walt Frazier (#52) of So. Ill. The Salukis defeated the Warriors, 71-56, to win the tournament.

Charleston School Completion in June

CHARLESTON--The architect and contractor for the R-1 high school building said they believe the June 30 deadline for "substantial completion" of the new structure will be met, barring unforeseen delays in shipment of materials.

Richard Pearce of the architectural firm of Pearce and Pearce, Inc., St. Louis, delivered a progress report to the board of education in which he pointed out that the contractor has "essentially scraped his original schedule, and has prepared a new progress schedule for the finishing phases of the work."

A Tight Schedule

Based on the revised schedule, Pearce told the board, the completion date of June 30 appears to be feasible, but he warned "it appears to be a tight schedule, one which allows little latitude for any unforeseen lack of manpower, late deliveries of materials, etc."

R-1 officials stressed to contractor Ray Clinton and his job supervisors that the June 30 deadline is absolute. Superintendent Tom Wells told them the building will be needed in July for an in-service training workshop for high school teachers, and said the completion deadline will not be stretched. Clinton replied that the deadline will be met.

Pearce told the board his firm had contacted all the other contractors and equipment supplies, and all advised him that they would be able to deliver, install, or hook up their products prior to the contract completion date.

Open House Planned

Wells told the board that plans are underway for an open house to inaugurate the new building, but said no date had been selected as yet.

Progress on the new kindergarten building is somewhat slower than on the high school, Pearce told the board. The scheduled completion date on the building is March 31, but Pearce said it appears actual completion will be sometime after May 15.

A summary of next year's high school operating procedures, as prepared by CHS Principal Louis Chaney, was handed out to the board members for study. The report will be condensed for publication in this newspaper next week.

No Decision on Remodeling

The board tabled until a special meeting later this month any consideration of repairs and remodeling of the present high school building, pending a report on the cost of new heating equipment.

Superintendent Wells recommended, and the board approved the re-hiring of the following teachers for the 1967-68 school year:

Teachers Scarce

Assistant Superintendent Bill Sellers told the board recruiting of new secondary teachers is progressing well, but that elementary teachers are hard to find. He said in six weeks of interviews he had been able to contact only four elementary prospects.

Sellers said he hoped local persons qualified in elementary education would volunteer to teach next year if their family situations permit them to do so. "It would be a real public service" he added.

In other action at the board:

Received bids from two equipment firms on purchase of 16 new buses in exchange for the district's present fleet of 12. Ponder Equipment Co. bid $47,291.36 and Courtesy Ford bid $48,000. The board took the matter under advisement.

The change will make room for a music room and a library at the Eugene Field School, rooms for library, music, art, and physical education at the Mark Twain School, and an art-music room at the A. D. Simpson building. The Wyatt elementary school will be closed.

Received an attendance report which showed 93.6 per cent attendance in elementary schools for February; 91.7 per cent in the junior high; 93.3 per cent in high school; and 87 per cent in kindergarten.

Progress Record of Cities at High Level

JEFFERSON CITY -- A study reveals that member towns and cities of the Missouri community betterment program have an impressive progress record in improvement of public utilities and services, school improvements and industrial expansions.

Henry Maddox, director of the State Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, which is charged with conducting the community betterment program, reports that in 1966 there were 210 Missouri communities entered in the activity.

"Our records show that while this represents less than 22 per cent of the total incorporated communities in the state eligible for membership, 85 per cent of all new and expanding industries in Missouri last year chose community betterment member-towns," Maddox stated.

"This would seem to indicate that towns and cities not participating in the program may be missing the chance to join in a successful cooperative venture designed solely to aid individual communities to help themselves," the director said. "In the member-towns there is a unique spirit of community awareness in the problems of better schools, streets, improved business buildings and other community improvements and, most important, a spirit of 'let's get together and get the job done'."

Gene Clack, director of the program for the commerce division, reported that there have been 245 bond issues passed in the 210 member towns totaling $87,815,000 for community improvements.

Clack's report also shows member communities built 387 miles of new streets; and improved 1,841 miles of existing streets. They added 301 miles of sewers; 567 miles of water mains; installed 12,215 street lights; added 1,715 school class rooms; gained 147 new industries; enjoyed 364 industrial expansions; employment increased by 24,521; added over 13,000 acres to their industrial sites; and almost 2,500 private businesses in the communities underwent improvements from new store fronts to complete remodeling.

"These are absolute facts that can be found through studies of progress, but there are other economic ramifications in member communities not readily noticeable," Clack said. "These communities also enjoyed many economic and social gains including higher retail sales, population growths, new and improved churches plus improvements to parks and other recreational facilities. And, these improvements were not limited to larger communities. They were in towns ranging from 91 to 39,000 in population located in every part of the state."

"Mr. Clack's report gives proof that any community can and will grow and prosper with proper planning and a continuing, cooperative, untiring effort by its citizens," Maddox said.

Cape Free to Award Contract For Runway

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. -- Cape Girardeau is free to award a contract for construction of a new 6500 - foot runway and make other improvements at its municipal airport after the Scott City city council withdrew objections to the proposal.

A 30 - day period in which a contract can be awarded on bids received in February expires Tuesday. Had the objections not been withdrawn the entire program would have been jeopardized, Cape Girardeau officials said.

Scott City filed the protest with the Federal Aviation Agency on grounds that location and alignment of the proposed runway might be hazardous and that noise from planes would be involved.

The runway extends in a general direction toward Scott City in the plans and is approximately a mile from the nearest building there.

Action to withdraw objections came after the Cape Girardeau city council adopted a resolution declaring it would do whatever it could to maintain safe air traffic patterns at the airport.

THE ART OF THANKSGIVING

The art of thanksgiving is thanksgiving. It is gratitude in action. It is applying Albert Schweitzer's philosophy: "In gratitude for your own good fortune you must render in return some sacrifice of your life for other life."

It is thanking God for the gift of life by living it triumphantly.

It is thanking God for your talents and abilities by accepting them as obligations to be invested for the common good.

It is thanking God for all that men and women have done for you by doing things for others.

It is thanking God for opportunities by accepting them as a challenge to achievement.

It is thanking God for happiness by striving to make others happy.

It is thanking God for beauty by helping to make the world more beautiful.

It is thanking God for inspiration by trying to be an inspiration to others.

It is thanking God for health and strength by the care and reverence you show your body.

It is thanking God for the creative ideas that enrich life by adding your own creative contributions to human progress.

It is thanking God for each new day by living it to the fullest.

It is thanking God by giving hands, arms, legs, and voice to your thankful spirit.

It is adding to your prayers of thanksgiving, acts of thanksgiving.

Sellers said he hoped local persons qualified in elementary education would volunteer to teach next year if their family situations permit them to do so. "It would be a real public service" he added.

In other action at the board:

Received bids from two equipment firms on purchase of 16 new buses in exchange for the district's present fleet of 12. Ponder Equipment Co. bid $47,291.36 and Courtesy Ford bid $48,000. The board took the matter under advisement.

Progress Record of Cities at High Level

JEFFERSON CITY -- A study reveals that member towns and cities of the Missouri community betterment program have an impressive progress record in improvement of public utilities and services, school improvements and industrial expansions.

Henry Maddox, director of the State Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, which is charged with conducting the community betterment program, reports that in 1966 there were 210 Missouri communities entered in the activity.

"Our records show that while this represents less than 22 per cent of the total incorporated communities in the state eligible for membership, 85 per cent of all new and expanding industries in Missouri last year chose community betterment member-towns," Maddox stated.

"This would seem to indicate that towns and cities not participating in the program may be missing the chance to join in a successful cooperative venture designed solely to aid individual communities to help themselves," the director said. "In the member-towns there is a unique spirit of community awareness in the problems of better schools, streets, improved business buildings and other community improvements and, most important, a spirit of 'let's get together and get the job done'."

Gene Clack, director of the program for the commerce division, reported that there have been 245 bond issues passed in the 210 member towns totaling $87,815,000 for community improvements.

Clack's report also shows member communities built 387 miles of new streets; and improved 1,841 miles of existing streets. They added 301 miles of sewers; 567 miles of water mains; installed 12,215 street lights; added 1,715 school class rooms; gained 147 new industries; enjoyed 364 industrial expansions; employment increased by 24,521; added over 13,000 acres to their industrial sites; and almost 2,500 private businesses in the communities underwent improvements from new store fronts to complete remodeling.

"These are absolute facts that can be found through studies of progress, but there are other economic ramifications in member communities not readily noticeable," Clack said. "These communities also enjoyed many economic and social gains including higher retail sales, population growths, new and improved churches plus improvements to parks and other recreational facilities. And, these improvements were not limited to larger communities. They were in towns ranging from 91 to 39,000 in population located in every part of the state."

"Mr. Clack's report gives proof that any community can and will grow and prosper with proper planning and a continuing, cooperative, untiring effort by its citizens," Maddox said.

Cape Free to Award Contract For Runway

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. -- Cape Girardeau is free to award a contract for construction of a new 6500 - foot runway and make other improvements at its municipal airport after the Scott City city council withdrew objections to the proposal.

A 30 - day period in which a contract can be awarded on bids received in February expires Tuesday. Had the objections not been withdrawn the entire program would have been jeopardized, Cape Girardeau officials said.

Scott City filed the protest with the Federal Aviation Agency on grounds that location and alignment of the proposed runway might be hazardous and that noise from planes would be involved.

The runway extends in a general direction toward Scott City in the plans and is approximately a mile from the nearest building there.

Action to withdraw objections came after the Cape Girardeau city council adopted a resolution declaring it would do whatever it could to maintain safe air traffic patterns at the airport.

THE ART OF THANKSGIVING

The art of thanksgiving is thanksgiving. It is gratitude in action. It is applying Albert Schweitzer's philosophy: "In gratitude for your own good fortune you must render in return some sacrifice of your life for other life."

It is thanking God for the gift of life by living it triumphantly.

It is thanking God for your talents and abilities by accepting them as obligations to be invested for the common good.

It is thanking God for all that men and women have done for you by doing things for others.

It is thanking God for opportunities by accepting them as a challenge to achievement.

It is thanking God for happiness by striving to make others happy.

It is thanking God for beauty by helping to make the world more beautiful.

It is thanking God for inspiration by trying to be an inspiration to others.

It is thanking God for health and strength by the care and reverence you show your body.

It is thanking God for the creative ideas that enrich life by adding your own creative contributions to human progress.

It is thanking God for each new day by living it to the fullest.

It is thanking God by giving hands, arms, legs, and voice to your thankful spirit.

It is adding to your prayers of thanksgiving, acts of thanksgiving.

One reason you can take dependability of phone service for granted is because we don't.

We know you count on your telephone in all kinds of weather; sunny or stormy, fair or foul. That's why we take steps to insure service dependability no matter what Mother Nature dishes out.

One way we do this is by keeping a continuous flow of dry air under pressure in our telephone cables. If the protective cable covering is damaged, the force of the escaping air keeps moisture out. The drop in pressure alerts us to the trouble and we fix it in a hurry—before your service is affected.

Another way we protect your phone service is by providing standby electrical power for transmitting, switching and receiving calls. In the rare event commercial power is interrupted, we switch to our emergency system and your phone goes right on working.

Dependability of telephone service may be taken for granted by most people. But it has never been and never can be taken for granted by the men and women who provide that service.

Missouris' Farm Income Rises

KANSAS CITY AP -- Missouri cash farm income for 1966 was $1,506,984,000, up 11 per cent from the income in 1965.

In making this annual report, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said realized income per farm for the year was $3,878, nearly $600 higher than the previous.

Sixty per cent of the cash receipts for the 1966, as well as 1965, was from sales of livestock and livestock products. More than 30 per cent came from sale of crop products.

Income from livestock and livestock products in 1966 added up to $911,125,000, while that for crops was $418,125,000. Receipts were up for soybeans and wheat but down for cotton lint.

Government payments to farmers set a new record high of $139,023,000, up 16 per cent from 1965. Cotton payments were up from $2,083,000 in 1965 to $19,809,000 last year.

Earthquake Area

Geological surveyors say that some 80 per cent of all earthquakes occur in the so-called "Ring of Fire" surrounding the Pacific Ocean, following in a general way the border between continents and oceans.

One reason you can take dependability of phone service for granted is because we don't.

We know you count on your telephone in all kinds of weather; sunny or stormy, fair or foul. That's why we take steps to insure service dependability no matter what Mother Nature dishes out.

One way we do this is by keeping a continuous flow of dry air under pressure in our telephone cables. If the protective cable covering is damaged, the force of the escaping air keeps moisture out. The drop in pressure alerts us to the trouble and we fix it in a hurry—before your service is affected.

Another way we protect your phone service is by providing standby electrical power for transmitting, switching and receiving calls. In the rare event commercial power is interrupted, we switch to our emergency system and your phone goes right on working.

Dependability of telephone service may be taken for granted by most people. But it has never been and never can be taken for granted by the men and women who provide that service.

Thomason to Review PAEOC Minutes

KENNETT -- Don Thomason, regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity of Kansas City, has requested the minutes of Tuesday night's meeting of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corp. that made major changes in the Bootheel OEO program.

The meeting saw the election of Robert Edwards of Benton as president of the DAEOC board, replacing Holcomb School Supt. James Dement, and the dismissal of Lloyd Phillips and William Graves from the professional staff of the regional OEO group.

Thomason requested minutes of both the regular and executive sessions of Tuesday night's meeting.

Both Phillips and Graves may appeal their dismissals. The two men have two weeks in which to file appeals to the DAEOC board, which under OEO regulations must review its earlier action and either accept or reject the appeals. Under the agency's rules, if the board sustains its earlier action, the two men may appeal to the regional office in Kansas City.

A question is expected to be raised within the next few days over the legality of the seating of members of the DAEOC board from Pemiscot County. The selection of that county's four delegates to the regional board resulted in a virtual free- for - all last month.

Thomason will have the right, under OEO regulations, to determine if the DAEOC board is properly elected and acted within the federal agency's regulations at the Portageville meeting Tuesday night.

The regional director is expected to review the minutes of the meeting next week.

Other guests, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trovillion and Postmaster and Mrs. William Newton and Jimmy, all of Golconda, Ill., stopped Sunday evening for a visit, enroute home after visiting in Poplar Bluff.

A film, "Measure of a Man," was shown Wednesday night at the First Baptist church. The film dealt with teenagers and the challenge of alcoholic beverages. Marjorie Rogers, returning to college soon, was presented with a new Bible as a gift from the church. A social followed the program.

Mrs. Zita Schinlder is visiting in West Memphis, Ark., with her daughter, Mrs. Jerry Dixon.

GARY CHAPMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Chapman, 1413 East Malone, has pledged Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business fraternity.

Electric Union Vote Set For March 31

KENNETT -- Emerson Electric officials met with representatives of the National Labor Relations Board and the International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, AFL-CIO, and agreed that a secret ballot election be held in the Kennett plant March 31.

The election, involving all production and maintenance employes, will determine whether employes will be represented by the IUE union.

Two previous attempts to unionize the local plant were voted down -- one on Sept. 18, 1964 and the other on May 28, 1965.

Farmers Should Get Early Start

PORTAGEVILLE -- The 30-day weather outlook through the middle of April should enable Bootheel farmers to get off to an early start with the 1967 growing season. Temperatures are expected to average above normal over the period and rainfall is indicated to run near normal or a little below.

The first problem on many farms is to reduce soil moisture so that ground can be worked and planting of early crops completed before cotton goes into the ground in late April or early May. Nearly 2 inches more rain than is accounted for by evaporation usually can be expected. Much of this is eliminated by runoff where drainage is good.

Tracks of low pressure centers are expected to follow a path well to the north so that much of our precipitation will come to showers or thundershowers associated with passing cold fronts. In general three to four and one-half inches of rain can be expected. However, considerable variability can be expected from farm to farm because of the character of showery weather.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole from Mid-March through Mid - April is 4.38 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Caruthersville 4.54 inches; Fisk 4.47 inches; New Madrid 4.50 inches; Poplar Bluff 4.50 inches; Dexter 4.59 inches; Morehouse 4.51 inches; Parma 4.46 inches; and Sikeston 4.70 inches.

The majority of high pressure centers will move from the southwest across the Mississippi Valley close to the Bootheel region. This promises a chance for more open weather than usual and will help maintain good drying conditions. At the same time, milder temperatures are more likely with this pattern.

Wheat should get off to a fast start under this weather regime and agricultural chemicals should make effective contributions to fertility and weed control. Soils are likely to warm more rapidly and show less tendency for dipping far below critical levels for all crops except cotton.

By paying particular attention to the five - day weather outlook, farmers will be able to take maximum advantage of warm periods for most favorable germination and emergence.

Beginning April 1, Agricultural weather stations in the Bootheel will report daily through the ESSA - Weather Bureau wire service. Highest and lowest air and soil temperatures as well as rainfall for the previous 24 hour period will be available from Portageville, Kennett, Malden, Poplar Bluff, Charleston and Sikeston.

The ESSA --Weather wire service is installed at radio stations KBOA Kennett, KCRV Caruthersville, KSIM and KMPL Sikeston, KTCB Malden, KMIS Portageville, and KFVS Cape Girardeau.

Bluff Woman Shot to Death

POPLAR BLUFF -- Mrs. Mamie Margaret Robbins, 61, of Poplar Bluff, was found shot to death about 9:45 a.m. in her home on Highway 67 North Thursday.

Mrs. Wilma Smith, daughter of Mrs. Robbins, entered the locked house with her own key and found the shooting victim lying in the floor of her bedroom with a gunshot wound through the neck. A .38-caliber revolver was found between her legs. Three cartridges in the chamber of the pistol had been snapped, but only one exploded, according to investigating highway patrolmen. There were powder burns on Mrs. Robbins' hands and face.

As investigation of the death is being continued by the Butler County Sheriff's Department, Coroner Wallace Fitch and the Highway Patrol. An inquest will probably be held soon.

The victim lived alone and was reportedly despondent since her husband's death, in May of last year.

THE PERCH THAT'S NOT A PERCH

Ocean perch -- found in food stores usually as frozen fillets -- aren't really perch. But that has no adverse affect on its fine flavor and popularity.

The trade name, ocean perch, was agreed on by the fishing industry to identify the small North Atlantic fish otherwise known by several names which allude to its reddish-colored skin. They are not, however, related to the freshwater yellow perch.

The "meat" of this fish is popular both for its delicate flavor and ease of preparation. These small fillets -- about eight in a pound -- can be prepared readily in any of the usual methods of fish cookery.

OCEAN PERCH TURBANS

2 lbs. ocean perch fillets, frozen
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Bread stuffing
¼ cup butter or other fat, melted
3 slices bacon
For Stuffing:

Cook 3 tablespoons chopped onion and ¾ cup chopped celery in 1-3rd cup butter until tender. Combine and mix thoroughly with 1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1 teaspoon thyme, sage, or savory seasoning, and 1 quart soft bread cubes. If stuffing seems very dry, moisten with 1 tablespoon water, milk, or fish stock.

Thaw fillets. Skin. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Line 12 well-greased muffin tins with fillets, overlapping ends. Divide bread stuffing into 12 equal portions; shape into balls. Place a ball of stuffing in center of each filler. Brush tops with butter and place ¼ slice of bacon on each. Bake at 350 degrees F., for 25 to 30 minutes or until fish flakes.

Before you say it's impossible for a child to be poisoned in your home, think about how many times you have known children to accomplish the "Impossible." Don't underestimate their ability to crawl, climb, or reach almost anywhere.

Don't just say you're sure. Be sure. Allow for the "Impossible" when handling and storing aspirins and other medicines, as well as all commonly-used household products.

Dement Defends Two Fired DAEOC Directors

HOLCOMB -- James Dement, superintendent of the Holcomb public schools and former president of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation issued a statement in defense of Lloyd Phillips and Bill Graves, who were dismissed as DAEOC directors Monday night.

In regard to the board members responsible for dismissing Graves and Phillips, Dement noted that Monday night's meeting was the first meeting for 16 of the DAEOC members and they took action on an audit which most of them "knew little about and had never seen."

Dement, stated that these new members "fired two men for office practices considered inefficient, for a period of time for which they were not responsible. The audit covered a period from December 2, 1965 to August 1, 1966 -- the period when Earl Williams was in charge and responsible for office practices. He was dismissed on August 29, 1966."

Dement said that at no time was Graves ever accused of dual employment. He said it was insinuated at the Monday meeting that Graves and Phillips signed checks of people who had been dual employed. "I'd like to point out that both of these boys were only countersigners and that Williams was the director at that time."

The former DAEOC president said the dual employment occurred over a year ago. Kansas City investigated and suggested Williams be replaced. Phillips, Alex Cooper and Mike Cooper, then working in the office, were cleared of having anything to do with the responsibility of the office practices.

"There was no valid reason for accusing Graves and Phillips of dual employment. They were accused because they were signing checks and holding down outside jobs. They did keep their jobs, after appointment to DAEOC positions, until their former employes could replace them, but they offered to pay back to DAEOC the salary received during this period. After Phillips resigned on August 29 there were no checks signed between that date and September 12 and no one received their pay or funds. On this date Phillips was authorized to be signer and Graves counter-signer until a new director was hired.

"Only three board members were on the new board and present at the meeting who were on the old board -- Rev. Betts of Charleston, Larney McNear of Rives and Dement."

CHARACTER OR CONVENIENCE?

With something like 7,000 varieties of rice known to exist, the American homemaker would have a frightful time deciding which to select if her local food store carried anywhere near all of them.

Fortunately, only about a dozen are raised commercially in this country. . . and these varieties are conveniently grouped as long - grain, medium - grain or short-grain, points out the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Americans generally prefer long - grain rice, which accounts for more than half the U. S. production. Long - grains are fluffy, dry and not sticky when cooked. In contrast, most persons from the Far East prefer grains which do stick together . . . the better for eating with chopsticks, perhaps.

There are other differences in the rice we find on grocers' shelves, however. And a homemaker's decision may depend on whether she wants more convenience or more character in her rice.

BROWN RICE probably would be rated as having the most character. It has an interesting nut - like flavor and a slightly chewy texture. But these grains have gone through only a minimum of processing and require more water and longer cooking.

PARBOILED RICE requires longer cooking and more liquid than regular rice, but it retains more of the natural nutrients. Grains also are noticeably more plump and "unsticky."

PRE-COOKED RICE is the answer to homemakers in a big hurry. The epitome of convenience, this grain needs only to have its moisture restored. It is fully cooked and dehydrated.

Legislature Strives to Upgrade Missouri Education.. Mackey

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Missouri legislature is making strides to overcome the shortcomings of the state in public education, Earl Mackey state representative from the 155th district, said Friday.

Mackey, a member of the house education and interstate cooperation committees, addressed about 100 school superintendents from Southeast Missouri at the school administrators division meeting of the annual two-day district educators conference.

Preceding Mackey's address, Joe Russell, president of the Cape Girardeau board of education, explained the goals of the national education assessment program.

Mackey said he feels that Missourians are becoming more concerned with the deficiencies in public education throughout the state and that this concern is being reflected in the current legislature. "This is an education-minded legislature," he remarked.

To illustrate this statement, the representative outlined the 14 proposals made by the legislature to improve the lot of Missouri schools:

One bill that has passed in the house and is now in the senate is the interstate compact of education, which allows Missouri to join with other states to discuss education problems. The compact sets up a clearing house for the interchange of educational ideas among states.

"This bill would help the states keep control of education," Mackey said. Solving problems in education by the states would reduce the need for federal intervention in public education, he added.

Another bill provides that the boards of education may estimate the average pupil attendance for the next year rather than the current year in applying for state funds, as is done now.

If the school expects an increase in enrollment, the board could make note of such increases, Mackey explained. There are two versions of this bill -- one from the house and one from the senate. "The house bill is less limited than the sennate bill," he remarked, pointing out that under the senate bill only an anticipated increase in attendance during the next year. The house bill has no quota restrictions.

The controversial "shared-time bill" is another measure designed to improve education in Missouri, Mackey continued. This bill, which has been passed by the house, allows handicapped children enrolled in private and parochial schools to received special education in public schools.

If passed, these children would receive state financial aid to attend those special education classes. The bill, however, has become involved in the religious education conflict and probably will not pass in the senate, Mackey said.

A bill which has passed the house and the senate provides state support for kindergarten programs. Missouri lags behind many states because it has no state supported kindergarten program, Mackey explained.

A scholarship bill which sets up 12 scholarships from each congressional district and four at large to help needy students has been passed by the house, Mackey said. This bill provides $500 scholarships for attendance at state colleges and is designed to keep students in the state.

Another bill designed to raise the quality of education in Missouri would require that a teacher have a master's degree or 32 hours of college credit beyond the bachelor's degree to obtain a lifetime certificate to teach in the state.

A sixth education measure proposed by the legislature calls for the establishment of a Missouri school reorganization commission. "The one-room schoolhouse still exists in the state," Mackey noted. Good school districts are adjacent to districts offering an inadequate curriculum to meet the needs of its population, he added.

This commission would study the education facilities and needs throughout the state and make recommendations for guidelines toward school reorganization.

Another bill calls for a constitutional amendment to provide transportation for public, private and parochial pupils out of state welfare funds. If the bill passes, it must be submitted in a referendum to Missouri voters as a proposed constitutional amendment.

A bill still in the house education committee calls for raising the compulsory attendance age in public schools from 16 to 17. A student would have to be 17 years old before he could drop out of school.

Mackey expressed confidence that a special education bill providing for large increases in state aid to handicapped (exceptional) children would be passed by the legislature. One of the shortcomings of this bill is that it has no provisions for increase in state aid for the gifted child, Mackey stated.

A bill still in committee would prohibit the refueling of school buses while passengers are on the bus. Some danger exists to the passengers when they are aboard during refueling, he explained.

To better the lot of teachers, the legislature has proposed a bill providing that a school district with five or more certified employes be given 30 or more minutes for lunch with no assigned duties, Mackey pointed out.

Missouri lags behind many other states in the field of educational television, he continued. To offset this, a bill still in committee calls for establishing a state educational television authority. Twenty-nine states have or are constructing facilities to utilize television in classroom education, he noted, and Missouri needs such facilities to keep pace in the modern education techniques.

Another bill -- the teacher-tenure bill -- applying to all full-time teachers, administrators, counselors and school nurses states that the employe would attain permanent status after three years in the school system and could not be dismissed except for some specific reason. Reasons for dismissal would include immoral behavior, incompetence in performance of duties and other specifically stated reasons. Dismissal could be effected only after a full and fair hearing, Mackey said.

A money bill in the senate provides for a $10 million increase in the school foundation fund. This is not an adequate increase to meet the needs, Mackey said, but any increase in the fund would be an improvement.

"Legislators only pass the laws," the representative stated. He charged the administrators to make the laws effective. If a law is not carried out on the local level, it is of little value, he pointed out.

"Missouri needs to make greater efforts to improve the lot of its educators," he added. The newer crop of teachers will be making legitimate demands for higher wages and better working conditions to upgrade their profession, he noted. If teachers cannot improve their lot in Missouri, they will go elsewhere to practice their profession in states where their demands are being met, Mackey pointed out.

The legislature and the local education administrators "must redress the teachers' grievances" or else they will be dealing with a teacher's union, Mackey concluded.

Joe Russell, a Cape Girardeau attorney, reviewed work being done by the exploratory committee for nationwide assessment of education.

Russell traced the history of nationwide assessment of education, which began in 1963 when the Carnegie Foundation was approached by citizens who asked if anything could be done to determine the level of education throughout the country.

The alarm of the citizenry grew out of charges that "Johnny can't read or write." Studies have refuted these charges, but have also raised the question, "Johnny can read, but exactly what can he read?" Russell pointed out. "We must be able to give adequate and well-founded answers," he said.

Some of the questions raised concerned the adequacy of testing programs and whether proper use was made of testing programs.

The Carnegie Foundation undertook to find out how feasible it was to determine the general education levels throughout the country and concluded that such a study could be done. Dr. Ralph Tyler was asked to chair the committee, which was charged with two responsibilities:

1. To confer with school administrators, school boards and educators to see how such an evaluation could be made.

2. To develop and tryout instruments and procedures to implement the programs.

With this charge the committee set out statements of objectives by calling on those persons knowledgeable in the field, then called on others to appraise and criticize the recommended objectives, Russell explained.

After these objectives were formulated, the Tyler committee approached four major firms that devise educational tests to have tests drawn up which could measure levels of American education. Many of these tests were recommended by the study committee to be sent back to the test firms for further development.

Russell, who was one of the members of the committee invited to San Francisco to study the recommendations of the Tyler committee, said the study group spent two days going over the test exercises drawn up by the firms.

Russell said that he was worried at first that the evaluation of education on a nationwide scale would lead to federal involvement in and control of public education, but that he no longer thinks such federal control will result from the study.

The proposed evaluation has been opposed by many who fear the federal government will take over public education or use the results of the tests to determine allocations of federal funds to public education.

The tests will not be administered on a universal basis, Russell pointed out, but rather from a random sample of 256 test groups.

The sample will be drawn from four geographic regions with regard to age groups (9, 13, 17 and adult), sex, socio-economic groups and demographic criteria (urban, suburban and rural), he explained. Included in the tests will be 3,000 to 4,000 exercises, ranging from written work to interviews, uses of motion pictures and filmstrips and other education testing methods.

A protest will be made to determine the validity of the tests. These protests will be evaluated and revised if necessary before the final tests are administered, he noted. Administration of the tests is expected to begin in the latter part of 1967.

"The public is entitled to know what it is getting for its school tax dollar," Russell said. "Sooner or later someone is going to have to do something about the assessment of education." He noted that Congress wrote into the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 a provision for this national testing.

The knowledge of the levels of education throughout the country is vital, he continued. The mobility of the population requires such knowledge, he explained, pointing out that the constant shift of population requires that all school districts provide superior education. A student who transfers from one school district to another will become the problem of that district if the student's previous district has failed to provide an adequate education, Russell remarked.

Legislature Strives to Upgrade Missouri Education.. Mackey

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Missouri legislature is making strides to overcome the shortcomings of the state in public education, Earl Mackey state representative from the 155th district, said Friday.

Mackey, a member of the house education and interstate cooperation committees, addressed about 100 school superintendents from Southeast Missouri at the school administrators division meeting of the annual two-day district educators conference.

Preceding Mackey's address, Joe Russell, president of the Cape Girardeau board of education, explained the goals of the national education assessment program.

Mackey said he feels that Missourians are becoming more concerned with the deficiencies in public education throughout the state and that this concern is being reflected in the current legislature. "This is an education-minded legislature," he remarked.

To illustrate this statement, the representative outlined the 14 proposals made by the legislature to improve the lot of Missouri schools:

State Tax Hike Likely By 1970

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Looking into the future is a precarious business, but all the studies indicate Missouri must face the possibility of a tax increase by 1969 or 1970.

It won't happen before then because Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has pledged he will not increase taxes during this four-year term. He is running for a second term in 1968 —although no formal announcement has been made.

But all the experts say he cannot make the same pledge during his second term.

This was brought out clearly this week in Senate debate on the so-called Heller plan to memorialize Congress to adopt some form of tax sharing with the states. Both houses adopted the memorial.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, an advocate of the Heller plan along with the governor, said that if Missouri is to share in the estimated $65 million that would be available under the tax sharing proposal, some form of state tax increase would be necessary.

As of now, the best guess is that the increase would come in the form of increased personal income taxes, increased liquor taxes or some other area where Missouri ranks among the lowest of the states.

According to a study by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Missouri's efforts to raise revenue locally are sixth lowest in the nation.

The governor argues, as he did in a speech at Atlanta this week, that the states should be given more leeway to study their problems and solve them, without federal pre-emption of most tax sources.

In that speech he cited the federal highway beautification requirements and Title 19 of the "Medicaid" law as two outstanding examples of the way the federal government requires states to meet federal standards or lose federal grants.

"For many years" he said, "we have been drawing closer to a 'big brother' concept of government — a concept that adds more and more controls over intimate portions of our lives. . .

"We are being asked to accept the theory that all ills in our society must be cured by government far removed because you and I — and all our fellow citizens - are indifferent or incapable of applying the equally time honored American tradition of lifting ourselves by our own boot-straps."

At another point he said:

"I believe that the Heller plan would aid all the states because under the present grants in aid from the federal government, we have only a small portion of the money we send to Washington trickling back, narrowly restricted by mandates of time and procedure fashioned and forwarded from Washington. . .

"Our country has been a sanctuary of freedom for three centuries. I realize that our increasingly complex society necessarily demands more conformity by all of us.

"But I do not believe that the fact our lives are more complicated and that there are more of us each year should curtail the basic freedoms which have been inherent in the lives of all of us who lived through the decades before the 'soaring sixties'."

The governor's views were reflected in the bipartisan support he got in both houses for memorials asking Congress to consider the Heller plan or some other tax sharing proposal.

Sen. John E. Downs, D - St. Joseph, said that no problem would have arisen if the legislature of Missouri and other states had met their responsibilities to take care of such problems as highways, education, mental health and others.

"We do not come into this with clean hands," he said in citing a familiar rule of law in equity cases.

Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R - Versailles, said even under re-apportionment, the fault lies with the legislatures which have gerrymander congressional districts to keep in office men who are responsible for letting the federal government make unreasonable demands upon the states.

"We have aided and abetted in this thing by keeping these people in office," he said.

Sen. Spradling, who is an officer of the Council of State Governments, dated the downgrading of state powers to the demands of the second World War.

He said "Missouri was backward then and is backward now" in many fields.

The governor's views are expected to be presented Monday and Tuesday in Washington at a seminar on tax sharing at Brookings Institute. He will be represented there by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, who joins Hearnes in approving the Heller plan or some similar tax sharing system.

Eagleton will attend a subcommittee of the National Governors' Conference, which approved the Heller plan to give the states a share of federal money with no strings attached.

State Tax Hike Likely By 1970

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Looking into the future is a precarious business, but all the studies indicate Missouri must face the possibility of a tax increase by 1969 or 1970.

It won't happen before then because Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has pledged he will not increase taxes during this four-year term. He is running for a second term in 1968 —although no formal announcement has been made.

But all the experts say he cannot make the same pledge during his second term.

This was brought out clearly this week in Senate debate on the so-called Heller plan to memorialize Congress to adopt some form of tax sharing with the states. Both houses adopted the memorial.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, an advocate of the Heller plan along with the governor, said that if Missouri is to share in the estimated $65 million that would be available under the tax sharing proposal, some form of state tax increase would be necessary.

As of now, the best guess is that the increase would come in the form of increased personal income taxes, increased liquor taxes or some other area where Missouri ranks among the lowest of the states.

According to a study by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Missouri's efforts to raise revenue locally are sixth lowest in the nation.

The governor argues, as he did in a speech at Atlanta this week, that the states should be given more leeway to study their problems and solve them, without federal pre-emption of most tax sources.

In that speech he cited the federal highway beautification requirements and Title 19 of the "Medicaid" law as two outstanding examples of the way the federal government requires states to meet federal standards or lose federal grants.

"For many years" he said, "we have been drawing closer to a 'big brother' concept of government — a concept that adds more and more controls over intimate portions of our lives. . .

"We are being asked to accept the theory that all ills in our society must be cured by government far removed because you and I — and all our fellow citizens - are indifferent or incapable of applying the equally time honored American tradition of lifting ourselves by our own boot-straps."

At another point he said:

"I believe that the Heller plan would aid all the states because under the present grants in aid from the federal government, we have only a small portion of the money we send to Washington trickling back, narrowly restricted by mandates of time and procedure fashioned and forwarded from Washington. . .

"Our country has been a sanctuary of freedom for three centuries. I realize that our increasingly complex society necessarily demands more conformity by all of us.

"But I do not believe that the fact our lives are more complicated and that there are more of us each year should curtail the basic freedoms which have been inherent in the lives of all of us who lived through the decades before the 'soaring sixties'."

The governor's views were reflected in the bipartisan support he got in both houses for memorials asking Congress to consider the Heller plan or some other tax sharing proposal.

Sen. John E. Downs, D - St. Joseph, said that no problem would have arisen if the legislature of Missouri and other states had met their responsibilities to take care of such problems as highways, education, mental health and others.

"We do not come into this with clean hands," he said in citing a familiar rule of law in equity cases.

Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R - Versailles, said even under reapportionment, the fault lies with the legislatures which have gerrymander congressional districts to keep in office men who are responsible for letting the federal government make unreasonable demands upon the states.

"We have aided and abetted in this thing by keeping these people in office," he said.

Sen. Spradling, who is an officer of the Council of State Governments, dated the downgrading of state powers to the demands of the second World War.

He said "Missouri was backward then and is backward now" in many fields.

The governor's views are expected to be presented Monday and Tuesday in Washington at a seminar on tax sharing at Brookings Institute. He will be represented there by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, who joins Hearnes in approving the Heller plan or some similar tax sharing system.

Eagleton will attend a subcommittee of the National Governors' Conference, which approved the Heller plan to give the states a share of federal money with no strings attached.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE COCKEYED CAPER

Barney decided to support his neighborhood bank by holding it up. He soon discovered, however, that the path of crime was even rockier than the road to success. As he dashed out of the bank, Barney found himself confronted by two police officers who were approaching him, one from the left and one from the right.

Spotting a gun in his hand, the two officers screeched to a halt and, taking careful aim, fired their own guns at desperado Barney as he stood betwixt and between them. One bullet whizzed past Barney's right ear, going in one direction, and and the other bullet zoomed past his left ear going in the other direction.

When the smoke cleared, Barney remained unharmed. The two police officers, however, proved less fortunate. Instead of hitting Barney, the two police officers had shot and killed each other. But what amazed Barney even more, he was charged with murder.

"But, I didn't kill anybody," Barney protested in court. "It was like a Keystone comedy. The two cops shot each other. Because they couldn't shoot any straighter than a pair of cock-eyed pool players surely isn't my fault."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Barney of murder?W

This is how the judge ruled: Guilty! The judge held that in attempting the holdup Barney knew that force would be used against him; that he became responsible for the consequences of his act and the force used against him.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: We at Planned Parenthood are deeply concerned about the comment you made to the 16-year-old high school girl whose friend was having pre-marital relations with her steady. It seems the girl asked her friend what she would do if she became pregnant. Her friend laughed and replied, "The pill never fails."

You said, and I quote: "I have received letters from other teen-age girls who also laughed and said, 'The pill never fails.' They stopped laughing when the doctor said, 'You are pregnant.'"

It is one thing to counsel a young girl against pre-marital sex. It is quite another thing to undermine the confidence that millions of women have in a well-proven contraceptive.

You strongly implied in your reply that the pill frequently fails to give contraceptive protection. I am sure you know, Ann Landers, that the pill is practically 100% effective when taken properly.

Many anxiety-ridden women will find their faith in the pill shattered by your statement. Planned Parenthood Centers around the country are sure to be bombarded by calls as a result of your comment. We sincerely hope you will say something to correct this unhappy impression. --REV. DON C. SHAW, PLANNED PARENTHOOD, CHICAGO.

Dear Rev. Shaw: I, too, have been bombarded with letters and calls -- from Planned Parenthood members all over the country -- and I'd like to set the record straight.

I am NOT opposed to married couples deliberately controlling the size of their families. I encourage birth control when it is not in conflict with religious training. And it is heartening to note that the outmoded concept that a woman has the moral obligation to produce as many children as "God sends her" has been abandoned by many contemporary religious leaders whose predecessors felt otherwise. My personal belief is that birth control is the only answer to the population explosion.

Your statement that the pill is practically 100% effective when taken properly is correct. And this is the point I wish to emphasize. The proper way to take the pill is under the supervision of a physician. You can be sure that the teen-agers who are taking the pill are not doing so under a physician's instruction.

Some teen-agers, and adults as well, are under the impression that the pill taken just before they go out will prevent conception for 24 hours. They are the ones who get pregnant. Moreover, the pill is not for everyone. In some instances the pill has produced serious side effects. This fact has been pointed out repeatedly by Dr. James L. Goddard, Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. Women with a history of tumors or clotting might be well advised to use other contraceptive devices. The decision should be made by a physician.

Giving advice is an awesome responsibility and I do not take it lightly. I have an obligation to my readers to make certain the counsel I give is correct. I would be failing my readers miserably if I did not alert them to the facts about the pill, and the facts are as I have stated them.

When necking become petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

R. C. Martin says:

Man in our day, it appears, is floundering in a vacuum of hopelessness, fear, and despair.

I would think that the great minds, educators and so, would be performing a much greater service to science and human prosperity and happiness if they spent more time in teaching us how to discover ourselves.

Throughout the annals of mankind the highest achievement of the human race have depended upon the individual and his ability to express his individuality.

All thinking men know that there is a strong undercurrent that is sweeping up and down the length and breath of our land trying to destroy the willingness of the individual to think for himself.

Civilization can rise no higher than the height of its individual members.

If every man and woman would begin today to develop the best that is in him or her, we should have a new world of achievement, perhaps a new world, far greater in the arts and industries than anything heretofore conceived.

The richest mine in the world is the one within yourself.

Sincerely yours,
R. C. Martin

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: We at Planned Parenthood are deeply concerned about the comment you made to the 16-year-old high school girl whose friend was having pre-marital relations with her steady. It seems the girl asked her friend what she would do if she became pregnant. Her friend laughed and replied, "The pill never fails."

You said, and I quote: "I have received letters from other teen-age girls who also laughed and said, 'The pill never fails.' They stopped laughing when the doctor said, 'You are pregnant.'"

It is one thing to counsel a young girl against pre-marital sex. It is quite another thing to undermine the confidence that millions of women have in a well-proven contraceptive.

You strongly implied in your reply that the pill frequently fails to give contraceptive protection. I am sure you know, Ann Landers, that the pill is practically 100% effective when taken properly.

Many anxiety-ridden women will find their faith in the pill shattered by your statement. Planned Parenthood Centers around the country are sure to be bombarded by calls as a result of your comment. We sincerely hope you will say something to correct this unhappy impression. --REV. DON C. SHAW, PLANNED PARENTHOOD, CHICAGO.

Dear Rev. Shaw: I, too, have been bombarded with letters and calls -- from Planned Parenthood members all over the country -- and I'd like to set the record straight.

I am NOT opposed to married couples deliberately controlling the size of their families. I encourage birth control when it is not in conflict with religious training. And it is heartening to note that the outmoded concept that a woman has the moral obligation to produce as many children as "God sends her" has been abandoned by many contemporary religious leaders whose predecessors felt otherwise. My personal belief is that birth control is the only answer to the population explosion.

Your statement that the pill is practically 100% effective when taken properly is correct. And this is the point I wish to emphasize. The proper way to take the pill is under the supervision of a physician. You can be sure that the teen-agers who are taking the pill are not doing so under a physician's instruction.

Some teen-agers, and adults as well, are under the impression that the pill taken just before they go out will prevent conception for 24 hours. They are the ones who get pregnant. Moreover, the pill is not for everyone. In some instances the pill has produced serious side effects. This fact has been pointed out repeatedly by Dr. James L. Goddard, Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. Women with a history of tumors or clotting might be well advised to use other contraceptive devices. The decision should be made by a physician.

Giving advice is an awesome responsibility and I do not take it lightly. I have an obligation to my readers to make certain the counsel I give is correct. I would be failing my readers miserably if I did not alert them to the facts about the pill, and the facts are as I have stated them.

When necking become petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sikeston, Missouri

R. C. Martin says:

Man in our day, it appears, is floundering in a vacuum of hopelessness, fear, and despair.

I would think that the great minds, educators and so, would be performing a much greater service to science and human prosperity and happiness if they spent more time in teaching us how to discover ourselves.

Throughout the annals of mankind the highest achievement of the human race have depended upon the individual and his ability to express his individuality.

All thinking men know that there is a strong undercurrent that is sweeping up and down the length and breath of our land trying to destroy the willingness of the individual to think for himself.

Civilization can rise no higher than the height of its individual members.

If every man and woman would begin today to develop the best that is in him or her, we should have a new world of achievement, perhaps a new world, far greater in the arts and industries than anything heretofore conceived.

The richest mine in the world is the one within yourself.

Sincerely yours,

Rusk, McNamara and Westmoreland said several times that the afternoon of talk produced no discussion of sending more American troops to Vietnam - above those already planned - or about specific military measures.

Rusk made one announcement to newsmen: He said Johnson will nominate Henry Cabot Lodge, who is resigning as ambassador to Saigon, to be a full-time ambassador at large, a sort of diplomatic troubleshooter. In that position he will change places with Ellsworth Bunker, who is replacing him in Saigon.

Rusk said the emphasis in the first round of talks was on the civilian side - political processes, pacification, economic matters. He said talk of military affairs was confined to a brief report.

He stressed twice that, as he sees it, the government of South Vietnam is in full accord with the search for peace.

McNamara said despite the new Communist offensives moves, their efforts have been unsuccessful, their morale is suffering and their losses are running 60 per cent higher than a year ago.

Westmoreland said that in the past year, Communist losses from all causes have doubled, the number of prisoners taken has increased fourfold, defectors have doubled, their losses of weapons are two and a half times higher, and only half of their 154 maneuver battalions are fully combat effective.

Johnson had indicated in advance that his main purpose at the Guam conference would be to discuss the works of peace. He told the opening session of the two-nation conference that more effective efforts are required on all fronts - military, social, economic and political.

Ky responded by rejecting the idea of ever admitting representatives of the National Liberation Front - the political arm of the Viet Cong - to any coalition government that might take power in Saigon after peace talks.

The dapper little premier was equally pointed in a series of questions all in effect calling for a major escalation of the U.S. war effort.

Said Ky: "How long can Hanoi enjoy the advantage of restricted bombing of military targets? How long can the Viet Cong be permitted to take sancturary in Cambodia, be allowed to regroup and come back at their will? How long can the North be permitted to infiltrate soldiers and weapons across the demarcation line?"

The American delegation meeting with the Vietnamese on Nimitz Hill, the U.S. Navy headquarters overlooking the island, included Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Ellsworth Bunker, who soon will replace Lodge in Saigon.

Based on the engineering report and the facts presented, the advisory committee concluded that since the additional revenues received would be sufficient to pay for the revenue bond issue, it would be to the advantage of Sikeston residents to purchase the Missouri Utilities properties located in Sikeston.

About 2,000 customers would be added to the city's electric utility roll. The new electric customers will receive an immediate rate reduction of at least five per cent and in some cases more, depending on kilowatt hour consumption.

The additional revenue received from the facilities operation would be sufficient to pay the added operating expense and retire the revenue bonds issued for the purchase, the board noted.

An election for the bond issue has been set for May 2. Approval of the purchase requires a 4/7ths majority of the votes cast.

Based on the present income and expense ratio, annual savings would be realized, which could be used for a general rate reduction and improvements to the city's electrical system.

If voter approval is received and the transfer is approved by the Missouri Public Service Commission, the Missouri Utility facilities will be integrated into the city's system on Nov. 1, 1967. The transaction will prevent the necessity of building duplicate lines and services, the board said.

Mercury vapor street lighting would be furnished to all areas of the city not presently served by the city, the board reported.

Passenger elevators were invented in 1857.
